CUBS BANK ON DEAN TO STEM YANKEE SWEEP

'I'll Flatten 'Em,' Dean Says as He Warms Up $185,000 Arm for Second Game.

CLOUDS HIDING SUN

But Weather Experts Hold It Won't Rain; Thousands Jam Bleachers Early.

BULLETIN

CHICAGO—A few minutes before game time, rumors were current this afternoon that Manager Gabby Hartnett might fool everyone and suddenly switch the Cubs pitching assignment from Dizzy Dean to Clay Bryant. Some of the Yanks were sure Gabby would make a last minute change.

CHICAGO—Cloudy skies hung over Wrigley field today as thousands of eager fans gathered early to watch Dizzy Dean's attempt to hurl the Chicago Cubs back on an even footing with New York Yankees, who won, 3 to 1 yesterday.

"I'll flatten 'em," the man behind the $185,000 pitching arm predicted. "We'll beat those Yankees today and we'll keep beating them until the series is over."

Although the sky was overcast —with temperatures in the lower fifties—the forecast for the day did not include rain.

Carry Slickers.

Despite the weather forecaster's optimistic view, umbrellas and slickers were in evidence in the long line of fans who stood outside the bleacher entrance all night.

No less confident that the great Diz would come through in this second game of the series, was Manager Gabby Hartnett.

"They're afraid of us now, gang," he told his crew. "We'll have them on the run."

But if Dizzy Dean, the braggart with the bad arm, fails to turn back the mighty Yankees this afternoon, it looks as though we National leaguers might as well crawl back into our holes for another year, and pull the holes in after us.

It's a big order for a fellow whose arm, between the elbow and the shoulder, pains and throbs with every pitch.

Yank Bats Weak.

Unless the Yankees regain their batting eyes over night it should-

HITS PROPOSAL

Trades Council Fights Move to Have Judges Appointed.

Describing the proposed amendment to the state constitution which would have judges appointed rather than elected, as "a definite step towards fascism," the Mansfield Trades council last night passed a resolution condemning the change.

The proposed change in the constitution providing for the selection of judges by a non-partisan board approved by the governor will go on the ballot at the November election. Petitions for a referendum on the change were circulated throughout the state by attorneys.

The Trade Council, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, urged in its resolution that members actively campaign against the proposed amendment.

William E. Watkins, president of the council, and William H. Scott, secretary, signed the resolution.

Cold Wind Keeps Temperature Down In 50's Today.

A cold north wind and overcast skies today gave Mansfielders a taste of the winter weather that is just around the corner.

The temperature climbed only five degrees in five hours this morning and stood at 55 at noon.

The forecast predicted partly cloudy and slightly colder tonight, with the skies due to clear Friday.

Fights Death Until Cubs Win

Death hovers over John Edward English, jr., 14-year-old Chicago boy who has only one chance in a thousand to live, but Johnny holds on—hoping the Chicago Cubs will win the world series from the Yanks. Johnny —he doesn't know that doctors regard the fact that he still is alive a miracle—received his biggest thrill when Bill Jurges and Rip Collins, popular Cub players, presented him with autographed baseballs from both teams. Johnny is suffering from neuroma, a form of cancer which follows along a nerve. Yesterday he was removed to a hospital and a radio was set up in his ward so he could listen to the game. Physicians said his burning hope to see the Cubs win was practically all that kept his heart ticking.

COURT PUTS 4 ON PROBATION

Plead Guilty to Burglary and Check Charges; Driver Waives Jury Trial.

Four persons under indictment by the Richland county grand jury won probation when they pleaded guilty today before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court.

They were Frank Darling, charged with forgery; Donald Blackledge, who admitted embezzlement charges; Phil Rosen, breaking and entering, and Clayton McConkey, issuing a check with insufficient funds.

Darling, Blackledge and McConkey were placed on probation for two years and Rosen for three years.

McConkey, a dapper former advertising man, arranged to make payment on a $15 check he issued to the Fairview hotel last July. The check, on a Little Rock, Ark., bank, was returned to the hotel because of insufficient funds.

McConkey is said to have passed a number of bad checks in four Ohio cities and in other states. He gave Houston, Tex., as his address.

Strong Upswing In Business To Continue In U.S., A.F. of L. Says

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The American Federation of Labor reported today that a strong upswing of the business cycle is under way and predicted increased activity for the remainder of the autumn months and next spring.

In its monthly survey, the federation said that removal of the threat of a European war has eliminated the chief brake on business. Trade union reports for the first part of September show employment gaining in nearly all industries and the outlook is for continuing gains in the next two months, the A. F. of L. said.

The report coincided with a statement by President Charles S. Hook of the National Association of Manufacturers. Hook said most industrialists believe business is likely to improve in the next few months, and encouraged "leaders in public life" to encourage spread of optimism.

Hook commented on an expression of President Roosevelt's views by a Hyde Park spokesman who represented Mr. Roosevelt as feeling "saber rattling" by business and labor leaders should halt. The N. A. M. president said industrialists "are extremely eager for a furthering of a more co-operative attitude" among leaders of all groups.

Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican national committee, however, said:

"Of course business has been retarded by name calling. It has been retarded until we have virtually as many jobless men and women today as we had in 1933 and until major farm prices are back to levels of five years ago because of the lack of purchasing power in the cities."

TECHNICIAN SAYS PROCESS JEOPARDIZED

Urges Mayor to Have Dairies Dispose of 800 Gallons in Another Manner.

RESULTS IN OVERLOAD

Collier Explains Milk Resists Sewage Treatment, Upsets Plant's Efficiency.

The dumping of approximately 800 gallons of milk wastes daily into Mansfield sewers by local dairies is playing havoc with the operation of the city's $300,000 sewage treatment plant, James R. Collier of Elyria, the city's sewerage technician, declared today.

The milk waste which strongly resists treatment and causes a septic condition in the sewerage was cited by Collier as one of the major reasons for the failure of the plant to fully treat capacity loads.

Asks Mayor to Act.

In a letter to Mayor Claude M. Hunter today, Collier outlined the difficulty and asked the chief executive to seek the co-operation of two dairies to dispose of their milk wastes in another manner.

Collier pointed that "until the time they were eliminated, the stability of the treatment process will be jeopardized."

He suggested that Hunter call upon the dairymen seeking their co-operation in disposing of the milk through another outlet rather than the sewers.

Seeks Dairies' Help.

Upon receipt of the letter, Hunter said he intended to take "immediate action" on the request, but is undecided on whether he will call personally on the dairies in question or whether he will call

DEADLINE NEAR

1,200 Sugar Beet Workers to Strike at Midnight.

TOLEDO —(INS)— With a deadline set at midnight tonight, there seemed little hope today that a strike of 1,200 sugar beet field workers could be averted.

The last opportunity for settlement of the dispute over a contract for next year and recognition of the union will come tonight when growers hold a meeting at Blissfield, Mich. Representatives of the union will meet at Ottawa Lake, Mich., to await the outcome of the growers' meeting.

The Fremont (O.) Beet Growers' association Tuesday night rejected union proposals and discussed effective opposition to the scheduled strike.

A strike would affect the harvest of 32,000 acres of beets which supply factories of the Great Lakes Sugar company in Fremont and Findlay, O., and in Blissfield.

AUTO UNION FOR 32-HOUR WEEK

Favors Shorter Working Hours to Absorb Jobless.

WASHINGTON — (INS)—A general 32-hour work week for the automobile manufacturing industry during periods of unemployment, was advocated today by the executive board of the United Automobile Workers Union, a CIO affiliate.

President Homer Martin estimated a 32-hour work week would increase employment in the industry 20 per cent, increase purchasing power, take present unemployed automobile workers off the relief rolls and "not cost the corporations any more."

The shorter work week must be approved by the industry before it can become effective.

Hitler 'Bluffed' But He Would Have Gone to War!

That's the Interpretation of Foreign Affairs Expert, Claiming Dictator Led Europe's Powers Up Alley.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer)

BERLIN—Now that Fuehrer Hitler has signalized his amazing Czechoslovak coup by a triumphal personal entry into annexed Egerland over flower strewn roads, it is possible to draw one's breath and consider the prevailing query whether there was an element of bluff in his war threat.

There is a German tradition of luck surrounding the Nazi leader. His people nod sagely and say the sun always shines on him.

As if to test this legend the historic day of his visit to Sudetenland opened with a cold rain. This finally ceased but the sky remained lowering and a deluge seemed almost certain.

Clouds Fade.

However, just as the fuehrer took his place on the tribune overlooking thousands of cheering country folk massed in the ancient square of Eger, the sun burst through a small hole in the rain drenched clouds and poured down on him like a spotlight. It was uncanny. I stood back of him and heard a murmur:

"Look! The sun shines on the fuehrer."

In a sense it was symbolic. for

FORD ANNOUNCES FIFTH NEW CAR

'Mercury Eight' To Be Priced In Medium Field.

DEARBORN, Mich. — (INS) — Henry Ford today entered the medium price car field, announcing a new car, the "Mercury Eight," will be ready for 1939 delivery.

Edsel Ford, president of his father's company, announced the new car, saying it will be priced between the deluxe Ford V-8 and the V-12 Lincoln Zephyr.

The new car brings the list of Ford-made cars to five, including the Ford V-8 and the Lincoln V-12. A company statement said the addition of the Mercury enables the company to "bracket the market in which more than 90 per cent of all cars today are bought."

'Law' Irked As 'Goblins' Play Rough

Halloween Celebrants Off to Early Start, Block Road Causing Crash.

The Halloween "goblins" which are already at work in the Mansfield area, will run into trouble with the law if they don't watch out, city and county enforcement officers warned today.

"Steps will be taken to halt the widespread destruction of property by pranksters who are "jumping the gun" with their Halloween tricks, Sheriff E. P. Long and Police Chief Meade K. Bates said.

"Halloween is still more than three weeks away, but there is no excuse at any time for some of the destructive pranks that have been reported to us in the past week," Sheriff Long said.

"We will bring offenders, young or old, into court if it takes that to stop this destruction of property and endangering lives," he added.

He said an accident on Cook road near the city Tuesday night was the result of a blockade of planks across the road, causing a car to crash. A number of reports of fodder shocks in country roads have reached his office, he added.

Police Chief Bates added his warning that pranksters in the city would be cited for destruction of property.

He attributed the disfiguring of a large billboard over a building on North Park street last night to a Halloween prank, although the manager of a dry cleaning establishment, whose advertisement appears on the sign, contended the act was malicious.

A rug bearing a huge black swastika and the words "Hail Hitler," had been nailed over the sign.

Officers warned against the removal of red lanterns from construction projects in the city, asserting that the absence of lights at excavations might result in a serious accident.

Sheriff Long appealed to parents to help in keeping boys out of trouble as the Halloween season approaches. Parents should emphasize the need for more sanity in celebrations and point out the danger in many of the pranks boys perform thoughtlessly when they start out in a "gang" to celebrate, he said.

Officers urged that celebration be confined to parties and harmless entertainment and that parents make an effort to delay celebrations until Halloween arrives, three weeks from Monday.

10,000 AT FAIR

Loudonville Jammed as Big Crowd Attends Festival.

A crowd estimated at 10,000 last night jammed the streets of Loudonville for the community's 50th annual street fair, making merry until well past 2 a. m. today, according to Oak Andress, fair board secretary.

The crowd was not unusually large, Andress said, as about 10,000 attend the fair each day the last half of the week. The fair opened Monday and runs through Saturday night.

Last night one of the entertainment features was the Big Apple contest from which two couples emerged as winners. They were Miss Ruth Oeken, Ashland, Frank C. Snyder, Mansfield; and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Savage, Wooster.

Today and tonight the Mansfield Prospect park band is providing the music.

World war veterans of Loudonville will take over the entertainment features for the closing day, Saturday.

'CYCLE BANDITS' SHOOT SALESMAN

Chicagoan Seriously Wounded Near Toledo; 2 Suspects Held.

TOLEDO —(INS)— Edward V. Wedekind, 34, Chicago salesman shot by two bandits near Grand Rapids, O., last night was in critical condition in St. Vincent's hospital today.

Wedekind's condition, physicians said, was so serious he could not view two suspects picked up near Perrysburg by Corporal James Velliquette and Patrolman Victor Ledinsky of the state highway patrol.

The men were held in the safety building here on suspicion. They were riding a motorcycle when arrested, and Wedekind told authorities the bandits that shot him were riding a motorcycle.

Set Up Organization To Work For Passage of Parks Proposal

The parks and city beautification committee of the Chamber of Commerce launched its drive today to obtain a favorable vote Nov. 8 on the question of whether a park commission shall be established in Mansfield.

The chamber's committee meeting with representatives of the city's Garden clubs and the various park associations, last night outlined the advantages and needs of the commission plan of supervision of the city parks system.

At the same time a speakers' committee was selected to convey the need of the plan to the general public which goes to the polls election day to decide the issue. The question needs only a majority vote.

Those named to the committee were Mrs. A. J. Reynolds, president of the Mansfield Garden club; Mrs. Howard Keene, president of the Astowela Garden club; Roy C. Vaughn, president of the Mansfield Public Park association; Andrew Herring, president of North Lake park association; Mrs. F. D. Boals, president of the Mansfield P. T. A. council; P. M. Bowman, president of Johns Park association; George Marshall, president of Liberty Park association, and L. A. Ott, W. C. Mead and John W. Graham.

Outlined by G. V. Sowers, chairman of the parks and city beautification committee, the plan calls for naming of three members to the board to serve for three-year terms without compensation.

The board would assume the powers that the service director now has over the city parks in that they would have full control and management of the city's system.

The board would have authority to acquire, or appropriate through such measures as provided by law, ground for park extension either in or adjacent to the city, and have charge of the disbursement of all appropriations made by city council for park purposes.

PREMIER WINS APPROVAL FOR MUNICH 'DEAL'

Ministers Vote 366 to 144 on Confidence Motion; Ovation Given Statesman.

'ACTION AVERTED WAR'

'Sure I Was Right' Premier Says and Cheers Ring Out in Endorsement.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The house of commons today voted confidence in Prime Minister Chamberlain and approved his bargain of Munich for keeping Europe out of war. The final vote was 366 to 144.

The house, by a majority of two and a half to one, answered "yes" to Chamberlain's demand for approval of his historic conduct of British affairs during the recent crisis, which, he said, saved Czechoslovakia from destruction and Europe from armageddon.

Labor Motion Defeated.

Earlier a labor motion disapproving that policy as one which "led to the sacrifice of Czechoslovakia under the threat of armed force and the humiliation of our country" had been defeated by 369 to 150.

The house adjourned until Nov. 1 amid a tremendous ovation for Chamberlain.

The prime minister left the chamber smiling and waving acknowledgements.

The defeated labor motion was an amendment to the government motion for a vote of confidence.

The two votes followed four days of debate on the crisis and the four-power agreement which ended it, marked by vigorous government defense and bitter opposition assaults in which some members of the prime minister's own conservative party joined.

Chamberlain himself wound up the debate, declaring he was opposed to a general election, which, he said, tends to "magnify differences."

"Possibly we may want great efforts from the nation in months to come," he said. "If that be so, the smaller the differences the better."

Answers Attacks.

BACK IN JAIL

Pair Who Escaped With Aid of Jailer's Daughter, Seized.

HICKORY, N. C.—(AP)—James Godwin, 19, and Bill Wilson, 21, who escaped from the Lexington jail last Monday with the help of the jailer's daughter, were re-arrested here today.

Godwin was slightly wounded when an officer fired upon him as he ran from a barn.

Wilson had surrendeerd voluntarily at the Hickory police station a short time earlier.

Lula Belle Kimel, 22, who was acting as turnkey at the Lexington jail, was sentenced to 60 days imprisonment last night after pleading guilty to a charge of aiding Godwin and Wilson to escape. She appealed.

Both men have been charged with murder in a warrant issued upon the death of Donald Moss.

Mart Booms Ahead With Higher Price Jumps, Rush to Buy

NEW YORK—(AP)—Big buying orders flooded the stock exchange today and many issues rose $1 to $5 a share to the highest prices recorded in a year or more.

It was the seventh out of eight consecutive sessions of strongly advancing security markets since the four-power Munich conference last week started a "peace" boom in Wall street.

Quotation boards flaunted "new highs" for the 1938 bull movement in such trading favorites as General Motors, Chrysler, Westinghouse Electric, Kennecott Copper, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward.

Buyers plunged heavily throughout the list, taking substantial blocks of leading railroad and utility shares as well as industrials in hope the passing of war fears would speed business recovery in the United States.

Raw materials, among the first to feel changes in business sentiment, encountered more buying. Lively demand for copper brought a second successive boost in the domestic quotation to 10¾ cents a pound, up ⅛.

Prof. J. L. King Talks On Drama Before Wednesday Study Club

PROF. J. L. KING of Denison university spoke on "Modern American Drama" yesterday at the first meeting of the Wednesday Study club which was held at the home of Mrs. Paul Bovard, 664 Woodhill road. This address was a continuation of a lecture Prof. King gave last year before several study groups.

"The modern American theater is rich in talent," he said. "The actor or actress is an interpreter of the ideal of the dramatist, but the success of any play depends a great deal on the writer," he pointed out.

He spoke of George Kelly, Philip Barry, Robert Sherwood, Sidney Howard, S. M. Burnum, Elmer Rice and Clifford Odets, telling of the influence of the different type of playwrights. He commented as he read parts from the different plays and described outstanding characters.

Part of the lecture was devoted to a discussion of regional plays, and of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town." The next meeting will be Oct. 19 with Mrs. John Bissman as hostess. Mrs. C. E. Nail and Mrs. E. R. Hartman will give the program.

Beaten Cubs Hope to Square Series on Dizzy's Arm

Unbeaten Clubs Hold Spotlight

Steubenville Invades Portsmouth, Massillon Tackles Sharon, Pa., in Features This Week.

By JIM EMERSON

COLUMBUS—(U P)—Collisions between six undefeated and untied football aggregations monopolized the spotlight for this week's scholastic gridiron program in Ohio.

Steubenville's Big Red invades Portsmouth; mighty Massillon locks horns with Sharon, Pa., and Cleveland Rhodes and Cleveland Lincoln square off in the top flight battles.

None of these Titans have tasted ties or defeats in their opening brushes. Portsmouth, fortified by a line averaging 192-pounds, had the pre-game edge over Steubenville. Massillon's state champs tackle an "unknown" in the Quaker state outfit which has rolled over all opposition to date. The Cleveland city battle is regarded as a toss-up.

Alliance In 'Breather'

Alliance's high-geared Aviators whose 15-year-old Hullis Hume has tallied 12 touchdowns in three contests have a "breather" in Youngstown Wilson, already beaten twice. The Aviators conquered Grove City, Pa., 21 to 7 last week, Hume scoring all three touchdowns.

Elyria, which last week pushed Middletown from the undefeated ranks, meets a potent 'underdog' in Lakewood to open the Erie league competition. In another headline Erie game, Lorain's untrammelled club plays host to Cleveland Heights.

East Liverpool, 27 to 6 winner last week over Akron West, chances a perfect record against Salem's powerful eleven. Warren, defeated only by Massillon, 21 to 0, hopes to upset undefeated Youngstown South.

Official warfare in the various playing leagues in the state warms up this week. Galion after three victories over non-conference foes, opens defense of its North Central Ohio loop title against crippled Bucyrus, already defeated. Galion beat Ashland, 21 to 6, last week.

Newark upset last week by Lancaster's Gales, has a good chance to turn the tables on Marietta's favored Tigers, defending their Central Ohio league championship

Streaks Play Juniors.

Other games this week-end included rampaging Findlay at Tiffin Columbian; Tiffin Junior Home at Sandusky; London at Arlington; Columbus North at Cambridge; Akron Central and Akron West; Marion at Lima South; Fremont Ross and Fostoria and Pomeroy at Athens

Tygers' Short Air Game Yet To Be Stopped

Complete 32 of 57 Throws in Three Tilts.

Any football team that can come close to completing half of its passes has a dangerous aerial game, according to the football experts.

So, according to this football axiom, Mansfield high possesses a passing attack that ranks right up there with the best in Ohio scholastic circles.

Passes Effective.

The Tygers' passing game may not be as spectacular as Massillon's long range attack, but it has been effective.

Nagle.

Confining their passing almost entirely to short throws over the line, the Coach Russ Murphy's gridmen, with Capt. Rich Nagle doing most of the pitching, have completed 32 out of 57 throws in the three games to date for a remarkable percentage of 561.

The 32 completions netted the Mansfield high contingent a total of 321 yards.

Mansfield completed 14 out of 23 against Akron West, 11 out of 22 against Massillon and seven out of 12 against Hammond, Ind.

Although they completed half of their throws, the Tygers' passes were least effective against the defending state champions. Massillon intercepted five throws, two for touchdowns.

Promises Trouble.

With their running game showing constant improvement, the Tygers should present an offense that may cause their future foes difficulties to halt consistently.

Any team that can throw and run with equal skill is dangerous, and Murphy's hope now is that neither department bogs down in the heat of battle

Columbus East is the next opponent to attempt to halt the Tygers' running and passing game, and how succesful it will be will be told at Stadium field Saturday

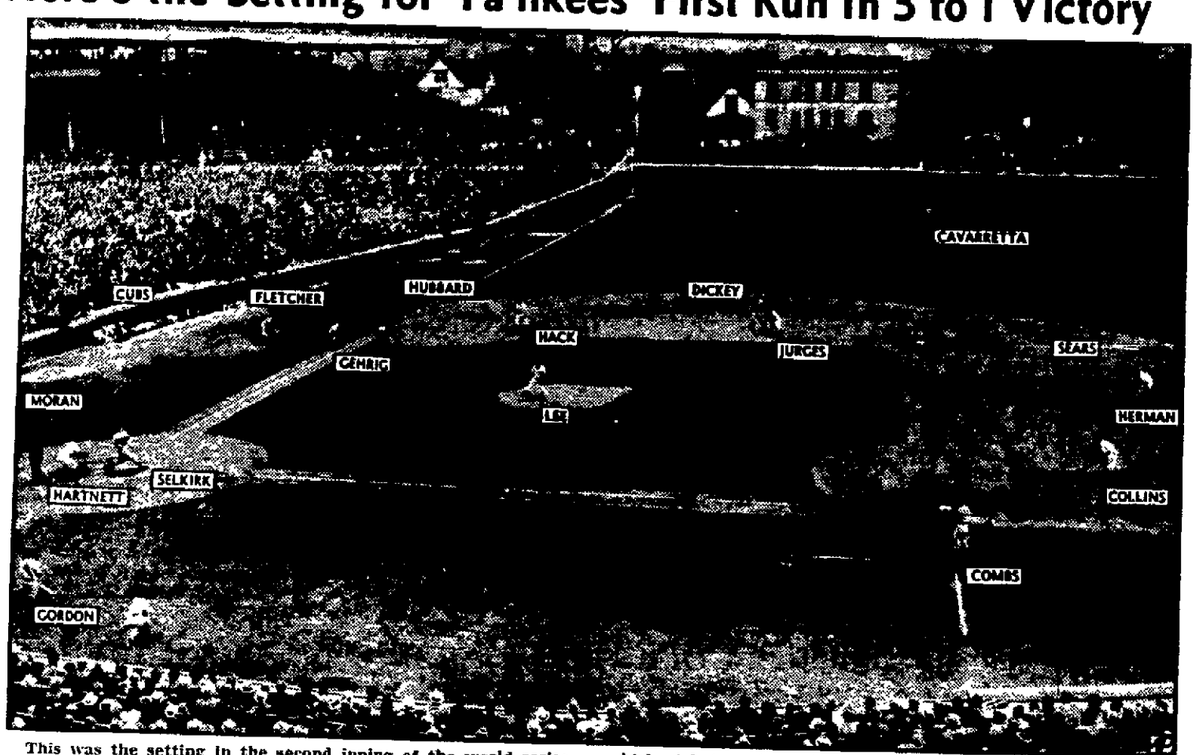
Huntington to Bring 17 Straight Wins Here.

Proof that the Kallmerten & Baer Coals have cut off a big chunk of opposition for their appearance at League park next Sunday was found in the record of its foe received by Business Manager John Villella today.

The Huntington, W. Va., semi-pro eleven has won 17 straight games in the last three years, the record shows, and included among its victims were outstanding Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia clubs.

Here's the Setting for Ya nkees' First Run In 3 to 1 Victory



This was the setting in the second inning of the world series opener in Chicago when the New York Yankees manufactured their first run of a 3 to 1 victory. Lou Gehrig was on third after getting on via a pass and moving around on Bill Dickey's hit. With a man on second and another on third, it was George Selkirk at bat as shown here. Billy Herman fumbled Selkirk's easy bounder and Gehrig raced home, Dickey scrambling to third. Selkirk made first easily. A few seconds later Joe Gordon smashed a hard roller through Stan Hack and the second run of the inning went over the plate. Red Ruffing's out ended the scoring and the inning.—Associated Press.

Madison Club Tapers Off For Jackets

Rams Face Tough Task at Mt. Vernon Friday.

Faced by what is regarded as the toughest foe on their schedule, Coach Al Fendrick's Rams of Madison high school tapered off today for their encounter with the Class A Mt. Vernon Yellow Jackets in Mt. Vernon Friday night.

The Rams' conquests to date include three Class B opponents, and if they can take the measure of the Jackets Friday, they will have accomplished a feat only one other Madison team has achieved.

Madison has meet several Class A foes in the past, and although it gave a good account of itself in all of them, the only game it was able to win was against Shelby a couple of years ago.

Fendrick realizes the task confronting the unbeaten Rams Friday, and he has the team in tiptop shape for the contest, but refuses to comment on the victory possibilities

Mt. Vernon will have a weight advantage, but the Rams are expected to offset this by speed. The Jackets also are strong defensively, while the Rams are chiefly an offensive club.

Coach Paul Snyder's big job this week is to fix a defense to halt Gene Harmon and Bill Wilkins, who have been scoring recklessly for the Rams.

A big delegation of Madison fans will accompany the Rams to Mt Vernon

Galion Ready For Bucyrus

Old Rivalry to Be Renewed Friday Night.

GALION — Galion's football eleven is in good shape for the Bucyrus game here Friday night under the lights It is expected that the largest crowd of the season will turn out for this traditional grid battle.

Coach John Burnison will have available the following men: Eugene Schreck, triple-threat fullback, and his understudy, Eugene Jack, who was last week's star player in the game with Ashland: Lawrence Maidens, center, Allen Hocker and Merle Kleinnecht, at guard positions: Eugene Goldsmith, Jim Parish and Bob Shupp, tackles, Dick Kump Dick Secrest Bill Grubaugh and Sam Sinclair, ends Clem Chandler, tackle, is on the injured list.

Since 1916 Galion has won eight and Bucyrus seven, with three games ties.

Trojans Promise Trouble for State Saturday

By RUSSELL FULLER

COLUMBUS—(INS)—All the kaleidoscopic color that can be crammed into any one setting took form today and foretold a cosmopolitan spectacle Saturday afternoon when in Ohio stadium the stalwart men of Troy from Southern California meet Ohio State in a revenge football battle deluxe

Early this week in Los Angeles the Trojans boarded a train to move across the continent for one of the seasons greatest intersectional battles—and those Trojans—they were bringing no babes.

True, there were three sophomores who appeared likely to take the field in the starting lineup. Bob Peoples, 180-pound fullback—Ben Sohn, 230-pound right guard—John Stonebraker, 216-pound right end—all first year men, but of deadly potentialities

Then at left end there was Bill Fisk, a junior weighing 178 pounds, and at right tackle, big Ray George, who sends the scales skipping up to 204. The sterling center and captain, Don McNeil, hits the 205 mark. They may make yards elsewhere but not through McNeil.

Harry Smith, modest and quiet, weighing 217 pounds, holds down left guard and bulky Howard Stoecker, at 212 in this corner, is a rock of gibralter at the left tackle post.

Unless he falls out of a pullman berth, Grenville Lansdell, junior quarterback is the boy to watch. Take last year for instance. Lansdell carried the ball 82 times. He made 416 yards, an average of 5.1 yards a try. He scored 24 points. His weight is 178.

Not even the great Orv Mohler whose slippery hips were the despair of Southern California opponents a few years back nor the elusive Cotton Warburton who stampeded his way to all-American fame on the Trojan eleven could outmatch Lansdell at his best.

At left half is Bob Hoffman, 196-pound junior, a blocking half more or less on the order of the great Ernie Pinckert, Trojan might of a few years ago whose blocking knocked opponents silly.

Jimmy Jones, only 19 and a fleet 175-pounder, whose inconsistency may prove to be his virtue—if he breaks loose on one of his sweeping touchdown jaunts, will hold forth at right halfback.

Those men, International News Service was informed just before the Trojans left for Columbus, will take the field against Ohio State when the whistle blows Saturday.

Amby Schindler, the great quarterback and fullback whose brilliant running smacked Ohio into a 13-to-12 defeat on the coast last year, is on the injured list. An operation performed on an injured knee has not proved altogether successful but the boy may see some action. He is a senior weighing 180 pounds.

The Trojan line is big but Ohio State's is bigger. Taking the same Buckeye forward wall that started against Indiana, we find the Trojans outweighed 212 to 208. The backfield margan is more pronounced, 192 to 182 pounds with the advantage to Ohio State.

USC lost its first game to Alabama, 19 to 7, recouped to beat Oregon, 7 to 0. Against Oregon, the Trojans made 294 yards on power and pass plays. Coach Howard Jones claims the Trojans improve with each practice.

'Second Guessers' Lay Cubs' Losses to Cavaretta's Throw

By EARL HILLIGAN

CHICAGO—(AP)—From the packed stands came a mighty roar as a young ball player named Phil Cavarretta whipped the ball from deep right field directly into the glove of Stan Hack at third base.

Today, from some of the smartest minds in baseball, came the opinion that Cavarretta, by his direct throw to third base in a futile attempt to catch Lou Gehrig, committed the "error of judgment" which defeated Chicago's Cubs yesterday and sent the New York Yankees into today's second game favorites to win—and possibly sweep the 1938 series.

"The throw should have been low, instead of high, so that one of the infielders could have cut it off and held Bill Dickey on first," agreed such men as Jimmy Dykes, Charlie Dressen, Larry MacPhail, Mickey Cochrane and Bucky Harris

PHIL CAVARRETTA

They all pointed out that Had the throw been low, Dickey might have been out at second on Hack's relay or most likely never would have tried to make second. With Dickey held to first, Second Baseman Bill Herman of the Cubs would have played deep on the next man and might have come up with a double play on George Selkirk's easy bounder, on which he charged in very fast As it happened, Herman erred as Gehrig scored and Joe Gordon came up with a single to score Dickey with the deciding run.

Dickey had four hits in as many trips but that wasn't what he was boasting about after the game. It was the fact he stole a base—and he remarked to Red Rolfe in the dressing room: "Boy—did you see me go!"

* * *

The Yanks' No. 1 bench "jockey," Coach Art Fletcher, gave the Cubs a merciless razzing throughout the contest. "Have you got power!" yelled Fletcher, then added: "Yeh—in the clubhouse." And other ribs. "Cut yourselves in for a loser's share, you generous boys—you cut Charlie Grimm out" Manager Hartnett scowled sourly once when he walked past the Yank dugout and heard: "Hi, Big Bulge!"

Open League Sked Friday

Bellville and Loudonville Open Title Fight.

Mid-State league followers will be offered their first chance to compare the title contenders Friday afternoon when Loudonville invades Bellville for the lid lifter.

Represented by one of the most promising teams in years, Bellville is rated the pre-game favorite, but the Red Birds are regarded as dangerous foes.

Coach Royd Hodges' eleven boasts of one of the few undefeated records in this vicinity. Bellville has defeated Centerburg, 31 to 0 Butler, 21 to 6, and Fredericktown, 58 to 0.

Outstanding in the Bellville victories this season have been Beryl Balliett and Harold Hamilton, who have scored 75 points between them. It was on these two backs that Coach John Kerekes concentrated his defensive drills this week.

Loudonville will invade Bellville Friday with a club that shows promise. The Birds lost to Ashland, 20 to 7, in their opener, but came back to wallop New London, 13 to 0, last week.

Other Friday afternoon games will take Butler to Danville, Mt. Gilead to Sunbury, Amherst to New London and Centerburg to Fredericktown.

Games on schedule Friday night: Bucyrus at Galion, Madison at Mt. Vernon and Upper Sandusky at Crestline. Shelby is scheduled at Ashland Saturday afternoon.

Lefty Gets Nod From McCarthy

Chicago's Chances Appear Hopeless After Bowing to Yankees, 3 to 1, in Opener.

By GAYLE TALBOT

CHICAGO—(AP)—Knocked silly by Yankee power and stifled by Yankee pitching in the opening game of the world series, the Chicago Cubs place what little trust they have left today in the ailing right arm of the once-great Dizzy Dean.

If Dizzy, a world series hero back in 1934, can summon for one more afternoon the wizardry that once belonged to him, there is a thin chance that the Cubs can beat this great Yankee machine and make a fight of the championship.

But it is not a proposition to bet on. Even the verbose Dizzy was shocked into comparative silence when Manager Gabby Hartnett told him last night that he would send him out there to silence the Yankee bats and square the series. For once, Dizzy who opposes Lefty Gomez today, didn't do much talking.

Those who remember the swaggering Dizzy of 1934, when he came back with one day's rest to shut out Detroit in the seventh game of the big series, might find this difficult to absorb. But they must consider that Dizzy doesn't have his "high, hard one" any more, and that he got an impressive eye-full of the Yankees as they slugged 12 hits in taking the opener, 3 to 1.

Still Has Heart.

Dean faces them today with a fighting heart still as big as a gallon jug, and there is something a little exciting about his being out there trying to hold down one of the most murderous collection of hitters in history with only his control and a fair curve ball.

VERNON COMEZ

Yet the chances are that Bill Dickey and his playmates will pop Dizzy like they popped Bill Lee yesterday, and that the champions will head back home tonight with a 2-0 lead in the series.

What chance the Cubs had of beating the Yanks was tied up in Lee. Now it looks more or less hopeless, barring a collapse of the American leaguers, and that is difficult to imagine In Lefty Gomez they have a pitcher for today's game who has won five straight world series starts, and for the third game on Saturday in Yankee stadium they have Monte Pearson, who was good enough to fling a no-hit, no runner a short time back. However Dean fares today, the Cubs must call upon Clay Bryant, a speedy but nervous young righthander in the third tussle.

Purchased by the Cubs for the record price of $185,000 at the start of the past season, Dean was a complete loss for several months. It was only after a long rest and continued treatment that his arm responded to some extent. He has won seven games and lost only one with the combination of his "nothing ball" and his noodle.

The Yankees are enough to make a pitcher sick. If they aren't the best all-around ball club there ever was, you couldn't prove it by the 43,642 chilled fans who watched them perform yesterday. It wasn't that Lee didn't pitch good ball, or that the Cubs didn't field brilliantly for the most part and go down swinging from their bootstraps. It was just that the Yankees were a little better in every department.

CUBS LOOK TO 'OL' DIZ' TO SQUARE SERIES

Rufus "Red" Ruffing was nicked for nine hits, which is not exactly phenomenal pitching. Yet it seemed that every time the Cubs got a man on base and looked like they might do something, either Frank Crosetti, the Yankee shortstop, or Joe Gordon, the champions' great rookie second-baseman, would come up with a dazzling stop and throw to spike the rally. Gordon, playing his first world series game, hit a double and a single and made one stop off Rip Collins that was sheer robbery.

National league partisans, second-guessing today, claimed that the failure of Phil Cavarretta, Cubs' right-fielder, to peg the ball in to second after Dickey hit the first of his four singles in the second inning instead of making a futile attempt to head Lou Gehrig off at third, was the turning point of the game.

However, the Yankees counted again on Tommy Henrich's double and Dickey's single in the sixth, and that would have made the final score 2 to 1, anyway.

Collects Three Hits.

Stan Hack, leading hitter on the Chicago team, lived up to his record by collecting three singles, the second of which drove across Rip Collins with the lone run for the losers. Gabby Hartnett, playing with two painfully damaged fingers, supplied the home fans with their biggest thrill when his drive into right field got past Henrich for a three-bagger.

CASE FACES FIRST HARD TEST IN LEHIGH CLUB

CLEVELAND — (NS) — Case's high scoring football team prepared today for its first real test of the season when Saturday it meets Lehigh here in an intersectional tilt. Case beat Findlay, 53 to 0, last Saturday and sophomores scored 35 of the 53 points. Consequently, Coach Ray Ride was optimistic about winning chances for the remainder of the season.

HEIDELBERG COMPLETES DRILLS FOR MT. UNION

TIFFIN —(INS)— Determined to erase the memory of the beating they took from Kent State last week, Heidelberg finished intensive drill on its football practice field today and looked toward Saturday's tilt with Mount Union. Coach Fred Turney is still minus the services of Fred Daugherty, Warren, veteran guard, who has been kept on the sidelines thus far with a bad ankle injury.

THEATER

NO other community in America can be more upset by war rumors than Hollywood, largely because so many of its men, players, executives and technicians, are not Americans and are subject to military recall in time of war. During the recent "scare" Richard Greene, the handsome young Englishman who has played in "Four Men and a Prayer", and "My Lucky Star", was rushed through his scenes in Shirley Temple's picture "The Little Princess" because he expected to be called back to England at a moment's notice.

Romance and Football.

One of those birdseye views of West Point is provided in "Touchdown Army" which opens today at the Ohio, with a group of younger players cavorting through the stately halls and over the dignified parade grounds of America's training school for army officers. Mary Carlisle, Robert Cummings and John Howard are in the cast. Romance and football entwined.

Problem Drama.

A problem drama with Singer Lanny Ross, Gloria Stuart, Joan Marsh and Robert Paige runs through Friday on the Madison bill where "The Lady Objects" is being shown. It's a combination of career-versus-marriage and a murder mystery. The film gives way on Saturday to the one-day engagement of the Milt Britton Batty Band at the Madison, a band that is in the top brackets of the stage and night clubs.

War Picture Returns.

One of the pictures destined to live longer than most returns to Mansfield again this, despite the fact that it has been shown here three or four times. But a new timeliness marks its appearance at the Park theater today and the remainder of the week. It is Eric Remarque's "All Quiet On The Western Front", the tragic story of young German boys caught in the war machine. The story, written of a period 20 years ago might be true today. "Private Secretary" with Edward Everett Horton, is the second feature.

Hell's Kitchen Story.

That highly fictionized district in New York City's west side which has been known as Hell's Kitchen for more than 50 years and which has undergone a reformation since 1900, is the locale for "10th Avenue Kid," which opens tomorrow at the Majestic. It's the story of one tough kid and the efforts of an ace reporter to make him "crack" on a story. Bruce Cabot, Beverly Roberts and Tommy Ryan are in the cast. "Stranger From Arizona" with Buck Jones also will be shown.

PREMIER WINS COMMONS VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Chamberlain Received 366 to 144 Ballot of Approval on 'Deal' at Munich.

his policy he declared that to "accuse us of having betrayed Czechoslovakia is simply preposterous. What we did was save her from annihilation and give her a chance for a new life."

Chamberlain was cheered when he said he had reached an age where criticism, even abuse, matters little to a man "if his own conscience approves his action."

"In looking back," he said, "I feel convinced . . . that by my action I did avert war.

"I am equally sure I was right in doing so."

The government refused to answer excited questions as to whether it was doing anything to insure the safety of Edouard Benes, who resigned yesterday as president of Czechoslovakia.

At the same time Chamberlain spiked talk of conscription, telling the house his opposition to compulsory national service in peacetime still held good.

Chamberlain planned an unparalleled new rearmament project today as a sequel to a parliamentary airing of his Munich "peace in our time" commitments.

Repeated admissions of "gaps in the nation's defense" were said to have annoyed Chamberlain. He therefore is asking his ministers for a concrete and convincing program to be ready before the House of Commons convenes again in regular session Nov. 1.

Throughout the debate of the last three days government speakers stressed the advantages of peace while the opposition emphasized the price of peace.

The common man meanwhile had difficulty in reconciling Chamberlain's prediction of "peace for our time" with the new drive to rearm, especially after a suggestion in the House of Lords yesterday that taxes might be raised again to meet the added burden of rearmament.

The war office announced all reserves who were called up during last week's crisis would be released by midnight Saturday.

Twelve hundred British legionnaires will leave Saturday to police Czechoslovak Plebiscite areas.

The air raid precaution section of the home office pushed experimentation with a new type of bombproof shelter.

Czech-Nazi Military Alliance Predicted.

BERLIN — (INS) — An outright military alliance between Nazi Germany and what remains of Czechoslovakia was predicted in well-informed circles today as a sudden and unforseen spurt of Czech-German co-operation facilitated work of the international commission mapping out new boundaries.

In contrast to the strained and protracted negotiations yesterday, when German insistence and pressure were needed for fulfillment of the reich demands, the Czechoslovak delegate collaborated to the fullest possible extent today and won for his government several major concessions in return.

Despite material and economic problems still to be ironed out, the trend toward an eventual Czecho-German military alliance to replace Prague's treaty with Soviet Russia appeared inevitable. It is an open secret that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler has already guaranteed Prague military aid against any aggressor.

End of Spain's War Step Closer, Claim.

LONDON —(INS)— Termination of the fratricidal Spanish civil war—with Premier Mussolini cast in the role of peace-maker—seemingly moved closer today as the British and Italian governments went forward with plans to bring peace to all quarters of Europe.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, it was revealed, has submitted a plan for ending the Spanish conflict to Mussolini, and Il Duce has endorsed it "in principle." He is expected to place it before the Fascist grand council today.

One of the chief points of the peace plan is withdrawal of 10,000 Italian troops from the insurgent Spanish forces. Upon completion of this "token" withdrawal, under the plan, Britain will announce formal recognition of Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia thus putting into effect the Anglo-Italian friendship pact.

League Told Germany Asks New Territory.

GENEVA—(AP)—The Czechoslovak delegation to the League of Nations announced today that the German members of the international Sudetenland commission at Berlin had drawn up new demands for the cession of territory beyond that contemplated by the accord of Munich.

A communique issued by the delegation said that the Germans were demanding that industrial and communications centers with a total Czech population of 815,000 either be occupied immediately by German troops or made subject to plebiscite.

(In Berlin yesterday the international commission, bowing to German demands, decided to hand over to Germany a fifth ceded zone, to be occupied by Oct. 10, which took in half as much territory as all the first four zones of occupation.)

(The Munich accord left delimitation of this fifth zone to the international commission, leaving it to decide what were areas of "predominantly German population.")

It's Contest Time Down on the Farm

Want to Be A Sports Expert? Farming Offers Real Future

There's Big Spot Waiting Rural Boys Who Know Their Infinitives.

By DILLON GRAHAM

NEW YORK — After years of sports writing I find I am greatly handicapped because I wasn't reared as a bare-footed farm boy.

It has suddenly become evident, too, that my choice of a college journalism course instead of majoring in agriculture was a youngster's foolish whim. What the sports writing profession needs is a study carried deep into the tap roots of agriculture.

Why? Here's why:

Corn huskings.
Plowing horse championships.
Hog-calling tournaments.
Draft horse contests.
Stock-judging exhibitions.

Those are some of the things a sports writer is exposed to nowadays. So you can see there is a big spot waiting in our profession for a farm boy who doesn't split his infinitives or mix his metaphors.

Some of us will report the national corn husking championship out near Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 3. Now there's an event. The best shuckers in the grain belt step to the barrier on the edge of a corn field, slip palm hooks on their pitching hands and get set like a bunch of crack sprinters awaiting the starter's gun.

She won the hog-calling championship at a church convention — so maybe religious writers, too, should have a farm education.

Crowds watch as a contestant for corn-husking honors goes down the home stretch.

Have No Time-outs.

For 80 minutes—longer than a football or basketball game—they move down aisles between rows of corn, snatching ears from stalks, ripping husks with palm hooks and slamming the ears against a wagon bang-board. No time-outs or rest periods. These are Iron Men and they even take their gulps of water on the fly.

The bang-board rises high on one side of the wagon, like a basketball backboard. These lads play a swing tune tattoo against the board that jitterbugs could hustle to.

Penalties often decide the victor. Judges trail the contestants. Missing an ear of corn is an error. So it isn't the guy who gets the most corn who always wins.

These huskers aren't particular about the weather. Last year they husked in a cold, driving rainstorm, slushing about in slippery mud. This year it may be a dry, wintry day that almost calls for oxygen masks as the contenders kick up suffocating dust.

Draft Horses Compete.

The plowing horse championship was held a short time ago on a Plainfield, Ill., farm. Paul Steifboldt, of Naperville, Ill., won as 10,000 spectators watched.

Draft horses get together for their annual pulling spree at Columbus, O., Oct. 8-15. These big steeds dig their hoofs into the ground, whip up power in the hind quarters and transmit it to the shoulders, through strong loin and back muscles. It's a swell tug-of-war show.

Hog-calling contests have become universal. Congressmen have even been known to brag upon their ability to attract the piggies. And on Broadway, there's a darling little chorine who prizes her hog-calling championship back in Arkansas more than she does her figure.

Boy, I'm ready to enter that back-to-the-farm movement.

He added that "something will have to be done at once" to protect the city's investment since the cause of the sewage plant trouble has been definitely determined."

In his letter Collier wrote: "In order that you may appreciate the magnitude and significance of these milk waste loads which usually arrive at the plant about noon and continue to flow for about an hour, the oxygen required to treat the average daily milk waste load would treat the average sewage of about 2,500 people.

"The significant feature," Collier went on, "is that the load, instead of being spread out (as is the population load) over a 24-hour period, is concentrated into an hour's sewage flow and constitutes a serious overload in the oxidation equipment."

Collier also sent copies of the letter to F. H. Waring, chief engineer for the state department of health in Columbus and George B. Sowers of Cleveland, who designed the plant.

No mention was made in the letter about mechanical difficulties which J. R. Turner, superintendent of the plant, said a month ago were still being experienced.

At that time Collier told The News-Journal that the Dorr company, which installed the aeration equipment was "experimenting" because of the failure of the plant to properly treat the sewage and that it would probably be "two or three months" before a report could be made on the design of the plant.

It was reported at the time that part of the paddle equipment used treating the sewage had been removed because of its failure to function properly under a full load.

LAST FIGHT FOR ME, NORRIS SAYS

Nebraska Senator Says He's Serving Last Term.

McCOOK, Neb. — (AP)—Senator George W. Norris, veteran Nebraska independent and friend of the New Deal, will close his long political career with his present term.

"I am serving my last term," he told a small audience in his home town last night. "I am making my last fight."

The 77-year-old senator, a national political figure for 28 years, is known as the father of the "lame duck" amendment and Nebraska's unicameral legislature. Stern foe of the "power trust," Norris worked for creation of the Tennessee Valley Authority and other public power projects.

ONTARIO WOMAN'S ENTRY WINS IN MISSPELLED WORD CONTEST

Prize winners in the misspelled word contest which was held last week in connection with the annual Fall Display week were announced today by V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Retail Merchants association which sponsored the contest.

Hundreds of entries were received and because many of them had found the correct number of misspelled words, the judges based their decisions largely upon the 25-word essays which accompanied each one, as well as on the original manner in which the answers were presented, Lodde said.

Of the $40 in cash prizes, the first prize of $15 was won by Mrs. George Reece, Ontario. She had all of the words correct, nad the best "essay" on "Why I Should Make It a Hobby to Shop In Mansfield," and also the most original entry, the judges reported. It was in book form, with the slogan of each merchant who participated in the contest, and cut out pictures of things he sells.

Second prize of $10 was won by Helen B. Koozer, 551 Springmill, and third prize, $5, to Mrs. Thomas B. Schacher, 11 Williams street. Mrs. Schacher also won in the hobby display contest last week.

Ten prizes of $1 each were awarded to Loretta Woerth, 39 Lexington avenue; Mrs. Charles Sheriff, 420 Sherman place; Catherine M. Pfeifer, 33 Columbia avenue; Emily Cox, 388 West Third street; Rhea B. Downs, 804 Richland Trust Bldg.; Mrs. Urith Funston, 31 Poplar street; Mrs. E. B. Davis, 207 Penn avenue; Ralph C. Bloom, 71 Wood street; Louise Kochheiser, 55½ East Third street, and George W. YOGI MYSTICS SEE DICTATORS FADING BY 1940

Predictions From Tibet Are Brought Back by Scholar of Ancient Cult.

(By United Press)

MONTREAL—The yogi mystics of Tibet, reputed to be the most accurate seers in the world, predict that the era of dictatorships will begin waning in 1940, Dr. Murdo MacDonald-Bayne, Scottish student of Yogism, disclosed in an interview while on a lecture tour here.

Dr. MacDonald-Bayne said he had the greatest respect for the amazing powers of the strange people who inhabit the cloud-wrapped heights of the Himalayas, live to great ages, accurately predict world events, and believe in personal immortality.

See China Victorious.

Besides predicting the wane of dictatorships in 1940, he said, the yogis forecast that the Japanese will never succeed in conquering China.

MacDonald-Bayne, a native of Edinburgh, who has made several visits to Tibet to study Yogism and follows the yogi principles of health and happiness, said he had been at one time associated with one yogi in the strange country who claimed to be 200 years old.

"He could make a journey on foot in five days that would take me at least 10 days," he said. "The yogis' capacity to annihilate space and time is extraordinary."

The lamas of Tibet, he explained, are divided into two classes, ordinary and mystic. The yogis, who have neither doctrine nor creed, come from the mystic class.

The yogis' recipe for health, he said, involved very little food, but a great deal of water and much deep breathing.

VOLTAGE SHOCK USED TO TREAT MENTAL CASES

Italian Physician Develops System Said to Produce Cures for Mentally Ill.

(By United Press)

ROME—Asylums for the insane may be greatly reduced if a system of curing insanity by an electric shock, developed by an Italian scientist, proves practical.

The Cerletti System, named after its perfector, Prof. Ugo Cerletti, director of the clinic for nervous disorders at the University of Rome, is applicable in schizophrenic types of madness. This is a form of melancholia in which the patient is reduced to long periods of morbidness or hypochrondria.

The system is inexpensive, easy to regulate and apply and easy to use without the previous knowledge of the patient—which is a necessary requisite in the cure of insanity by shock. The shock is introduced into the patient through a headpiece much in the form of earphones.

Development Needed.

Cerletti has experimented with mental cases and he declares that he is satisfied with the results. He admits that the system is not entirely perfected and that further experiments will have to be conducted before it can be universally applied.

Should the system live up to its inventor's expectations it would be a tremendous contribution to the therapeutic field because it could be applied to an estimated 80 per cent of the inmates of asylums. Dr. Cerletti contends that this percentage of insanity cases are affected by the harmless schizophrenic type of madness.

Dr. Cerletti began experimenting on a treatment for insanity some years ago. He knew, as all doctors of nervous disorders do, that insanity is sometimes curable through applications of a violent, painful shock, as long as it is employed without the patient's previous knowledge.

Working on this idea, Dr. Cerletti first resorted to insulin injections. This threw the patient into a convulsive state, which follows shock. He had to renounce it, however, because it proved too costly, too complicated and caused too much of a strain on the patient's system.

Tried Other Stimulants.

He then tried a heart stimulant called cardiazol. The epilepsy it produced caused too much physical anguish and its effects wore off after some days, leaving the patient in his former state of melancholia.

It was then that Dr. Cerletti hit on the idea that electricity might prove to be the right solution. He began experimenting in 1935 with electrical appliances. He took as a collaborater, Dr. Luigi Bini, who is also an electric technician.

Together they developed a machine which was easy to operate and could be regulated so as to make the most minute changes in the voltage and amperage discharges. It was first applied on animals and the results were heartening.

Since then he has been experimenting on mental patients and he cites several cures. Although satisfied, Dr. Cerletti is withholding final judgment until further experimentation.

ROBOTS REPORT ON COSMIC RAY

Small Balloons With Tiny Instruments Back After Floating in Strato.

PASADENA, Cal.—(U.P.)—Ten self-recording electroscopes, sent into the stratosphere by small balloons to check on cosmic rays, have all been returned by the finders to the California Institute of Technology.

All of the sensitive instruments were sent back in a new record for speedy recovery.

Six of the cosmic ray electroscopes were released from Bismarck, N. D., and four from Oklahoma City.

Each instrument was carried aloft by a tandem of 10 balloons, the highest going to 85,000 feet, with 40,000 feet the minimum altitude attained.

Each of the instruments returned brought the finder $5. One woman in North Dakota reported that as she sought to untangle the instrument and parachute with which it had descended to earth, one of the balloons that had not burst exploded in her face, but her only concern was to save the instrument.

The purpose of the flights was to obtain more accurate determination of how cosmic radiation varies with latitude.

Of the 43 electroscopes that have been sent into the stratosphere since 1934 all but five have been returned. One was lost in Canada and four in India.

Each flight furnished research workers with about one foot of motion picture film recordings of cosmic activities at various elevations.

SITE REVEALED OF HANNIBAL'S GREAT BATTLE

Tombs of 80,000 Killed at Cannae to Be Excavated by Archaeologists.

(By United Press)

ROME—The cemetery of 80,000 ancient warriors killed in the battle of Cannae, in which Rome's perennial enemy, Carthage, routed eight Roman legions, has been discovered by Italian archaeologists.

The necropolis found after a ceaseless search of more than 10 years, is not far from the site where the ancient port of Cannae used to be.

So far several hundred tombs have been excavated, and it appears that the great necropolis covers nearly four acres. The surprising number of warriors purported to have been buried in so small an area is attributed to the fact that while some of the dead were carefully laid in roughly but strongly built graves, a great number of bodies were hastily and confusedly interred in heaps.

Experts in Disagreement.

Archaeologists, who immediately rushed to the scene of the amazing discovery, are now divided into two factions. The first believes the skeletons respectfully buried in the tufa and rock tombs are those of the victorious Carthaginians, while the other bones stacked in between the tombs belong to the Roman legionnaires defeated on that battlefield.

The second group, however, is of the opinion that those buried in the tombs are Carthaginians, while the remainder are allied soldiers who fought and died for Hannibal. They point out that numerous warriors from Numidia, Spain, the Balearic Islands and other Carthaginian possessions were led by the African general across the Alps and into Italy during the second Punic war.

According to the belief of this second group of scientists, Hannibal had the bodies of the dead Romans thrown into the River Aufidus, now the Ofanto, and thus carried by the swift current into the Adriatic sea.

At first it was thought that just another necropolis had been unearthed. But this hypothesis was discarded when it was noted that all the skeletons belonged to men mostly between 20 and 50 years old.

Work is continuing rapidly among the olive groves and grape vines of Apulia, as archaeologists believe that they have finally settled the vexed question of the site of the Battle of Cannae, where, in the summer of 216 B. C., Hannibal defeated eight Roman legions led by Consuls Aemilius Paulus and Terentius Varo, with a slaughter among the two armies of 50,000, according to Livy, and 80,000 according to Polybius.

LOUDONVILLE—Al Hitler, 23, was seriously injured in an automobile crash on the Wooster road. He was taken to the Kinney Smith hospital in Wooster.

City folks will soon be driving to the country to look at Autumn's splash of color. Mr. Farmer, the wise thing to do is "color up" apples, cider, pears, etc., that you have for sale, with a Want Ad. Then you'll not be overlooked, in fact sell the farm itself if you can't get the "help" to run it.

STOCKS CLIMB TO NEW HIGHS IN EARLY MART

Profit Taking Holds Advances to Fractional Range; Brokers Optimistic.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks again jumped to new highs for the year in today's early market proceedings, but heavy profit taking on the recent recovery push kept advances generally in a fractional range.

Conspicuous sprinters were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Santa Fe, Kennecott, American Telephone, International Harvester, Western Union, American Can and Owens-Illinois.

Revived business optimism, with talk of greater cooperation between government and industry, in addition to the brighter foreign outlook, provided the principal speculative and investment inspiration, brokers said. Bonds followed stocks and most commodities improved.

Estimates of last week's freight loadings, to be officially reported tomorrow, indicated a total of around 708,000 cars, a new peak since the week of Nov. 6, last year.

Noted also was a jump of 28.5 per cent in this week's bank clearings. The aggregate, though, was 3.3 per cent under the same 1937 period.

'BLUFF' WORKED BUT HITLER WAS READY TO FIGHT

That's Interpretation of Expert, Claiming Dictator Led Powers Up Alley.

in the working of the Sudeten imbroglio out of his advantage without bloodshed he was as lucky as any man who ever lived. Had Europe been plunged into a general war he and the fatherland most certainly would have paid a frightful price along with other countries in the ensuing cataclysm.

Still that doesn't answer the question whether he bluffed England and France and the rest into an unwilling partition of little Czechoslovakia.

Premier Chamberlain of Britain told a tense house of commons before the settlement that Hitler had declared categorically he would risk world war rather than wait for acquiescence in his demands. I heard Hitler say to Egerlanders in a voice breaking with emotion "As to you, the nation was ready to unsheath its sword for you."

What Hitler's innermost thoughts were will perhaps remain his secret for he is a man who keeps much to himself. But close observers who are permitted a glimpse behind the scenes declare not only did he not want war but would have avoided it by any means short of sacrificing the prestige of his country and himself.

That doesn't mean he wouldn't have fought as a last resort, for he would, and it would be a bad mistake not to recognize this.

By putting together the oddly assorted pieces of this puzzle, however, many observers arrived at the conclusion that the Nazi dictator daringly led Europe deliberately up to the edge of a precipice with the firm expectation that his opponents would surrender before it was too late to prevent war.

Works By Intuition.

Hitler works a great deal by intuition, which has guided him unerringly thus far in such achievements as the tearing up of the treaty of Versailles, the remilitarization of the Rhineland and the annexation of Austria. He himself once remarked, "I am like a sleep walker." That is another way of putting the same thing.

His intuition carried him cooly through three weeks of suspense which rocked the whole world and then he quietly accepted the gift that the Munich four power conference handed him on a salver. Had he taken one step more in the direction of war, mobilized armies of the great powers might have clashed.

Many persons believe Hitler was gambling further to a certain extent, that even if he invaded Czechoslovakia, England and France wouldn't fight.

It is said in usually well informed quarters here that advisers close to the fuehrer insisted he had nothing to fear from these two powers. These advisers urged him to push this advantage to the limit, on the basis he had the Angle-French combination on the run.

It would seem the Nazi chief took part of this advice—about pushing his advantage—but declined to accept without further investigation the statement that the two democracies would not fight. His intuition told him this was a point whereat to proceed cautiously.

The British premier made his position clear and Hitler was much impressed. Hitler then realized the danger of British intervention if there was war.

A widespread conclusion in Europe is that Hitler led his opponents up the alley a considerable way, that is to say he was bluffing at times, but there never was a moment when he wasn't prepared to back his bluff if crowded into a corner.

Presumably Britain's Premier Chamberlain and France's Premier Daladier both realized this Rather than take the dangerous chance of calling Hitler's hand they conceded his demands.

On close analysis, the so-called Hitler luck whether it relates to sunshine or showers—would seem to be a lot more than mere chance.

It is the working of that extraordinary intuition of his coupled with absolute sureness of himself That and attention to essential details.

Here I might mention that Hitler was due at Eger at noon. At that hour the sky was dark. He didn't appear on the rostrum until after 1 p m. when presumably a weather expert could say there would be a burst of sunshine to sustain the tradition. Hitler watches things like that.

LOUDONVILLE—John Jeffery, who lives south of here, accidentally severed the little finger on his right hand while chopping kindling with a hatchet.

Isn't This Why You Are Constipated?

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? Bread, meat, potatoes? No wonder you're constipated; you probably don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It means the kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines. It's this mass that helps a bowel movement.

The common sense thing to do is to eat a natural laxative food. Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast may give you just the "bulk" you need. And it gives you, in addition, Nature's great intestinal-tonic, vitamin B1. All-Bran is not a drug, not a medicine. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

AFRAID TO MARRY + + +

By HELEN WELSHIMER

CHAPTER 12.

Judy discovered, to her surprise, that she was singing under her breath as she drew her bath, brushed her chestnut hair until it shone, dusted her face with powder, outlined her lips with deeper scarlet to match the velvet dinner frock she chose.

Tonight she felt like Judy Rogers, the popular heiress, about to go some place, with—Craig.

At thought of that name she put the silver-backed brush down very carefully. Must it come before her always to dim whatever unimportant pleasure offered? Why hadn't she guessed, in those other years, that life would hold no savor when he did not meet her?

She had been so afraid to trust love.

"But I was right," she mused out loud. "Craig didn't love me. Or if he did, he got over it. It's foolish to be so hurt over something that you understand so well I know love doesn't last! And I always knew it, so why don't I get better?"

The wide brown eyes in the mirror couldn't tell her. So she picked up the brush and began to arrange her hair.

Mechanically she turned the dial on the radio. Every room in the hotel had one, a little box that made part of a table.

She paid no heed to the program until she heard an announcer say: "Ladies and gentlemen of Radioland, we have the pleasure, this evening of listening to Miss Mary Banner, who is singing for you from the . . ."

Mary Banner. The accompanist played a few bars of music. Then a sweet, low voice began to sing. It was natural, plaintive, pleading It did not lilt. It cried a little.

Judy listened in perplexity. The voice wasn't happy! Why, the girl should have exulted. She had Craig. What more did she ask of life?

She had been promoted, too Here she was, doing a solo number, when bits had been her share before. Judy wondered from where Mary Banner was singing The station signed off and she could not learn. She noticed the number on the dial. Tomorrow night she would tune in on this program early.

She gathered up her brief cape that was part of the dinner frock, an evening bag that her mother had paid a ridiculous price to obtain for her as a Christmas present one year, gloves and a real lace handkerchief. She was ready before her telephone rang.

"You didn't run away," Ronald greeted her. "I was afraid you would"

"I never thought about it," she answered, the party mood flitting over her. She had felt that mood in the old days—felt it sliding over her shoulders, adjusting itself at the waist, just like a dress.

It had been a long time since she had worn it.

They took a taxicab far up the river where the water looked cold and gray in the autumn night. They swung across the slim steel bridge which carried them to the Jersey side where a famous night spot lifted its bright lights to the sky above the Palisades.

They laughed, talked, ate, applauded the floor show, and became old friends for the space of three hours.

Then Ronald severed the spell "Judy, I think you should tell Marjorie Barton where you live."

"You've talked about me to her?" Judy was on the defensive in an instant.

"No, but she has mentioned you to me. I know she is frightfully worried. I made no sign that I knew you. That night you telephoned her apartment—"

"Yes?" Judy breathed. So he knew about the night that Craig had answered the telephone.

"When you hung up, Craig Denby tried to get the station from which you made the call: I heard he did get it, hours later, but it was a drug store so it meant nothing. I was there, you see, when he Denbys came"

The swing band was throwing music toward the sky, recklessly, brazeningly, bewitchingly, and the moon shone through the windows of the club, shedding white light that was banished by the electrical blaze. For Judy the spell had ended. She was dining with Ronald Birrell, the red-headed young attorney who was the newest member of the famous law firm which had handled her father's business. That was all. She should not have come. Well, she had made a mistake. At least, she could thank him for a good dinner, and go home.

She stood up. "It was a lovely evening until now. No one we know has seen us. Suppose we pretend it didn't happen?"

He stood up, too. "I couldn't do that."

"Why not?"

"I want to remember it. And you."

They were in a cab, crossing the George Washington bridge, when he spoke again.

"I don't want to interfere but I think you should see Marjorie Barton. She's desperately worried."

"And then she will want me for a house party, and somebody else will have a week-end of shooting and hunting and after that there will be the Thanksgiving holidays on someone's estate, and I'll be a pretty girl — someone for whom everyone feels sorry and asks around. I can't repay them. I'll be a parasite. Remember, Ronald Birrell, you warned me of the dangers of my easy life."

"You'll not be a parasite. I'm not afraid of that. But I think your friends have a right to know where you are You are real You won't go under"

"You believe that?" Judy asked. "I'll tell you what I'll do. I won't tell Marjorie my address but I'll go to see her. Now—tonight."

Judy did give Marjorie her address. Listening to her genuine entreaties, realizing how much worry she had caused, Judy relented.

"After all, darling, it isn't fair to shoot off like a comet and leave us wondering if you landed on Mars or are holding on to the tail end of a meteor," Marjorie complained. "Work if you will—"

"—if I must," Judy corrected.

"—but keep in touch with some of us"

Judy laughed and solemnly gave the name of her hotel. "It's second-rate and shabby but it's home at the moment."

* * *

Ronald excused himself and went out on the terrace. Marjorie spoke reproachfully. "He never made the slightest, sign that he knew you! I think he was mean, but I suppose the implication is that the lad can be trusted. He's been squiring Abbey Bohng hither and yon of late."

"Abbey Bohng?"

"No, you don't know her. She isn't in the Social Register. But she's capital personified. She has 87 new hats a season or something like it. And she's buying a count."

"Oh, that girl!"

"That's the way to talk! I saw Ronald at the theater with her the other night. The count's boat docks next week."

"She's phoney and Ronald is real. He couldn't like her," Judy insisted.

REFORM DRIVE TO CUT TEXAS TAXES STARTS

Unicameral Union Hoping for Referendum on One-House Legislature Plan.

(By United Press)

AMARILLO, Tex.—A group of Texas taxpayers, prompted by the success of a unicameral legislature in Nebraska, have started a statewide drive to bring the one-house system to Texas.

The campaign was organized by an Amarilla group, "the Unicameral Union," headed by W. A. Askew. Petitions in the hands of local sponsors throughout the state found ready response, and the Unicameral Union hopes to achieve a double purpose by having all signers pay a 10-cent fee. The money will be used to finance the campaign and the payment is expected to discourage from signing those persons not genuinely interested in the movement.

State Senator Leader.

The unicameral system has been discussed considerably in Texas during the past four years. Its chief advocate is State Sen. G. H. Nelson of Lubbock, who ran third in the race for lieutenant-governor last month. Nevertheless, surveys have indicated surprising interest among the voters of the state.

The Unicameral Union will seek to have the legislature next year submit the question to a vote of the people. Among those whose aid has been solicited is W. Lee O'Daniel, Fort Worth flour salesman nominated for governor.

"The purpose of the Unicameral Union is a one-house legislature, efficiency and economy," O'Daniel was told. "Industry, agriculture, labor and capital prosper in Nebraska. Why not a unicameral legislature for Texas?"

The notice listed several taxes which other states have but which Nebraska does not. These include corporation, personal income, general income, luxury, and cigarette taxes. The union also declared that Nebraska is one of three states in the United States which has no bonded indebtedness.

O'Daniel has not expressed himself on the unicameral question, although he said after his victory at the polls that he hoped to put into effect "some very definite" ideas about efficiency and economy.

DEBT OF HONOR PAID TO TOWN

Engineer Pays Father's Debt by Leaving $192,000 Estate to Norwegian City.

(By United Press)

PHILADELPHIA—Although he lived in America 40 years and won considerable fame as a consulting engineer, Henrik von Zernikow-Loss left his $192,000 estate to the small Norwegian town of Kristiansund to repay his father's debt.

Von Zernikow-Loss died at Oslo, Norway, June 28. He was 78 years old and never renounced his Norwegian citizenship. His will, probated here, disclosed that all but approximately 1 per cent of his estate was placed in trust for Kristiansund because years ago his father failed in business there, causing severe financial losses to many friends.

"In placing my soul in God's hands," the will said, "I wish to say that the disposition of my means has been conceived as a duty I owe, with a view to repaying as far as it is within my power to do so, the losses suffered in my early childhood by several citizens of Kristiansund through a disastrous failure of my father, brought about by foreign business connections through no fault of his own.

"The many years since then have made it impossible for me to ascertain the different amounts or to reach the direct losers or their direct descendants, and I therefore leave my means to their city, which is the city of my birth, with the hope that they would, if they could, approve of my action."

Von Zernikow-Loss never married. A nephew, Bjarn Loss of Lake City, Minn., received an annual income of $1 250 and a niece, Margit Loss, Lake City, was bequeathed $625 a year.

The engineer was awarded a medal by the Franklin Institute here in 1907 for inventing a new method of casting axles.

BOY LIKES REAL TRUCKING

GLOUCESTER, Mass. — (U.P.) — Russell Howard, captain of Gloucester high school's football team, has a yen for trucking—not the dance. While his classmates express conventional desires to occupy high places in business and professional fields, Howard says his ambition is to become an expert driver-mechanic on one of the transcontinental highway dreadnaughts.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MOVIE TO COMPARE MANSFIELD OF TODAY AND 10 YEARS AGO

Mansfield will have the opportunity to make comparisons between "now and then" when a motion picture that is being made here is released.

T. J. Carroll, general manager of the National Film Productions, who is in the city to direct the picture, made a feature of Mansfield 10 years ago and when the new film is completed, it will contain "shots" that were taken a decade ago.

Next week, Carroll and his cameramen, H. C. Kunkleman, and sound operators, will take pictures of the fire drills in the public schools as Fire Prevention week is observed in the nation.

Monday the Mansfield fire department was filmed in action and when its new pumping equipment arrives this week, the first tests will be recorded. Tuesday the police department personnel was filmed.

Mansfield parks and the hundred and one interesting things around the city that the "natives" see everyday but pass by without thought, will figure in the picture. Carroll hopes to "shoot" about 4,000 or 5,000 feet of film, and to work into the feature as many local angles as possible. The Mansfield high school team will be shown in "slow motion."

When the film is completed and assembled it will be shown at the new Park theater.

HE'S NOT DEAD

Ohio Youth's Parents Cheered As Hospital Explains Error.

URBANA, O. — (INS) — Charles Bremer, 15, is very much alive in spite of notice of his death received by his parents from a Columbus hospital.

The youth was injured in a football game on the local school yards last year and recently entered the hospital for treatment of a hip fracture.

The notice which his parents received said that he had died following an emergency operation for appendicitus. The hospital explained that it was a case of mistaken identity since there were three Charles Bremers in the hospital at the time.

PRIZE DOGS TO FACE JUDGES IN SHOW SUNDAY

District Event at Fairground Attracts Wide Variety of Hunting Hounds.

The third annual Northcentral Ohio dog show, scheduled for Sunday afternoon at the Richland county fairgrounds, is expected to bring scores of prize hunting dogs from this section of the state to Mansfield.

Entry classifications had been opened today for the six important breeds of hunting dogs. Entries will be judged by nationally known dog authorities who will be brought here by the Richland Couty Fish and Game Protective association, sponsor of the show.

Drag Chase on Program.

A drag chase at 1 p. m., featuring outstanding field dogs, will be the highlight of the afternoon's program.

Ribbons will be awarded winners in six groups. They are: beagles, cockers, setters, pointers, fox hounds and coon hounds.

Dogs will also be judged in three age classifications, including the puppy group for animals under one year old; derby class for dogs under two years old, and all-age group for animals over two.

Roscoe McGinty will be in charge of beagle entries; Louis DeCamp and Gus Miller, bird dogs; Harvey Stewart, coon hounds, and C. M. Gore, Lexington, fox hounds.

EX-GALION TRUMPET PLAYER NOW HEADS MILLION DOLLAR BUSINESS

A two-page article in a current magazine tells the success story of a former Galion boy, Charles E. Green, who prior to 1912 played trumpet in the Galion high school band and now heads a million dollar corporation.

Green is president of the Consolidated Radio Artists, Inc., and as such directs the management and booking of 140 radio attractions including most of the top bracket bands. He is the business power behind such attractions as Don Bestor's band, Paul Whiteman's, Ina Ray Hutton, Rita Rio, Henry Busse and others. He also controls the NBC artists bureau of San Francisco.

Green began his musical career in the Galion high school band. He was born Jan. 26, 1892, the son of James and Emma Green, and following the death of his mother made his home with his grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilt. His home has been in New York City for many years, but he still visits his aunt, Mrs. Cora Flood, who is his only living relative in Galion.

After graduating from high school, young Green went to Warren where he entered and graduated from the Dana Musical Institute and later continued his musical studies at the Detroit Conservatory of Music, at Danville, Ind., and at Cornell university.

His career as a professional really got under way when he formed a band with himself as leader. In 1923 he organized a girls band at Indianapolis, called the Fourteen Bricktops, and piloted them to fame on the vaudeville circuits.

Before 1930 he had organized the Consolidated Radio Artists, Inc., and his business has climbed into the million dollar class. He now has offices in the RCA building in New York and Chicago, Hollywood, Dallas, Cleveland and San Francisco.

His Horatio Alger climb from a schoolboy trumpet player to the head of the largest artists booking agency in America has been made in less than 25 years.

Houses of Glass Are in Offing, Architects Hold

NEW YORK— (INS) —Mr. Average American who lives in the model home of 1939 will think twice before he throws stones.

Glass houses are on their way, say leading architects projecting for prospective home builders the model home of the future.

In a series of fall exhibits being held here glass is architectural and interior decoration news from kitchen to bathroom. A model house of glass has kitchen panelled in a new decorative colored glass having, at first glance, a look of marble and known as vitrolite. All working appurtenances in the kitchen such as table tops, pastryboards and ventilation hoods are of glass and doors between pantry and dining room are of plate glass decorated in an etched design of flowers.

The tub of the bathroom in another exhibit has an inset pane of peach colored mirror glass set in the front and a splash screen of plate glass gaily decorated with mermaids and fishes. A dressing room in the same exhibit has walls and ceiling wholly of peach colored mirror glass with peach taffeta with ruffles bound in Marie Antoinette blue.

Tact is a way of getting what you want without letting others know you want it.

C. OF C. DRIVE GOES OVER TOP

Adds 56 New Members, 16 Over Quota, as Annual Fall Round-up Closes.

With 56 new members recruited —16 above the quota set for their annual fall round-up, the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce yesterday closed its "Step Forward With Mansfield" campaign with a final report dinner at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The drive for new memebrs was described by Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager, "as the most successful fall campaign staged" in the history of the organization.

He said that plans are being made for a "Victory dinner" to be held Oct. 12 at the Mansfield-Leland hoted with C. H. Henkel, former president of the organization acting as host.

The dinner will be held to honor the 20 "salesmen" who participated in the membership drive. Awards will be given to the team of Paul Cropper and M. J. Cole who lead with the largest number of new memberships and for being the first team to report its team quota.

Other teams awarded prizes for attaining their quotas under the leadership of co-chairmen O. C. McCormick and Henkel are: John S. Jones and George H. Smith; J. A. Herbert and W. H. Goodenough; Rev. Bans Fishing and Hunting In Flood District for Year

On the recommendation of game and fish management agents of the Ohio Division of Conservation, Muskingum Watershed Conservancy district directors anounced today that Charles Mill reservoir area, located near Windsor, will be closed to fishing and hunting for at least a year.

Closing of the area is a necessary first step in the development of a long-time wildlife program, directors said.

They were informed that closing of the area to hunting will permit building up of the game population by providing brood stock. The surplus game can be taken on a controlled basis without danger of destroying the wildlife resources of the area. A year of no hunting will also permit establishment of food and cover patches which will greatly accelerate wildlife development, it was pointed out.

Fish management agents reported that the fish population of the reservoir will increase rapidly because of good soil conditions and shallow water, provided no fishing is permitted until stock is established.

Agents of the state conservation division, in cooperation with the district, expect to complete an extensive waterfowl and fish planting program this year in the upper portion of the lake north of U. S. route 30, which will be held as a sanctuary.

Game management practices contemplated for the area include posting of the area, building of wood-duck nesting boxes, wildlife good patch plantings, planting of berry-producing shrubs utilized by wildlife and improvement of nesting sites for waterfowl.

Nowadays, a small boy can tell you all about an automobile, before he can even read. Even if he can't read, however, he can get a great deal of fun out of "Mr. Bradley's Car" by Aroline Leach.

This picture-story book tells how Mr. Bradley jumped into his car, one day, and drove to work on a very bumpy road. First he lost his spare tire, then the top of the car, then the headlights, rear wheel, and finally the steering wheel broke. When this last happened. Mr. Bradley decided to walk the rest of the way to work.

Then Mr. Wilson came along. He carried a large basket and a screw driver. He picked up all the missing pieces, fixed the car, drove it home and painted it. After that, whenever he passed Mr. Bradley he always offered him a ride but Mr. Bradley never accepted! He said he'd rather walk.

Bill for Chicago Crime Estimated At $200,000,000

CHICAGO — (INS) — Chicago's yearly crime bill has been figured out at two hundred millions of dollars — and racing handbooks have gone far to make it what it is.

The estimate that more of these millions annually go to the "books" than into any other shady channel, was made by Dr. Arthur J. Todd, professor of sociology at Northwestern university.

The university has gained note for its crime analyses and prevention measures, especially since its sponsorship of the lie detector.

According to Dr. Todd, who summed up the situation for the American Journal of Jurisprudence, Chicagoans annually spend:

Sixty-three millions on bookies.

Fifty millions in taverns.

Thirty-seven millions on race track gambling.

Thirty millions on commercialized vice, and—

Twenty millions on policy games.

Said Dr. Todd:

"At least $200,000,000 annually goes into activities that directly or indirectly contribute to adult delinquency in Chicago."

A Statement of Public Policy

by The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company

The Honorable Wright Patman, representative in Congress of the first district of Texas, has announced that he will introduce in the next Congress a punitive and discriminatory tax bill frankly designed to put chain stores out of business. In the past, Mr. Patman has been very successful in securing enactment of legislation which he has sponsored. He has demonstrated that he is a very able lobbyist and propagandist for his own bills. The management of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company is therefore faced with the necessity of deciding upon a course of action in relation to this proposed legislation—whether to do nothing and risk the possibility of the passage of the bill and the resulting forced dissolution of this business, or to engage in an active campaign in opposition to the bill.

In arriving at a decision, the interests of several groups of people deserve consideration—the management, the 85,600 employees of the company, the consuming public, the millions of farmers producing the country's food, and labor.

1. The Interests of the Management

The interests of the management can be dismissed as of very little importance.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company is managed by George L. Hartford and John A. Hartford under an arrangement made by their father, George Huntington Hartford, the founder of the business. George L. Hartford has been actively engaged in the grocery business for 58 years, working generally six days a week, 52 weeks a year during that entire period. John A. Hartford has been actively engaged in the grocery business for 50 years, working generally six days a week, 52 weeks a year during that period. Both of these men could, of course, retire without personal or financial inconvenience and live very comfortably if chain stores were put out of business. The record of the last calendar year shows that out of any money earned annually from the business, in the case of George L. Hartford, 82 percent is paid to government in taxes; in the case of John A. Hartford, 83 percent is paid to government in taxes. As neither of the brothers has any children, any monies left out of their earnings would accrue to their estates, and in the event of their death, inheritance taxes would probably amount to two-thirds of such accrued earnings, leaving approximately 6 cents on the dollar as a motive for continued personal service.

It is therefore apparent that the interests of management need hardly be taken into consideration in arriving at a decision.

2. The Interests of the Employees

The interests of the employees of the company are, however, a matter of very grave concern.

It is simply a statement of fact to say that the employees of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company generally throughout the United States receive the highest wages and have the shortest working hours of any workers in the grocery business, whether chain store or individual grocer. Many of them have devoted all of their working lives to the interests of the company.

The management, therefore, has a definite obligation and duty to defend the interests of these 85,600 employees against legislation intended to throw all of them out of work.

3. The Interests of the Consumer

Since this business has been built by the voluntary patronage of millions of American families, we believe that we must give consideration to their interests in this matter. Millions of women know how acute is the present problem of providing food, clothing and shelter for themselves, their husbands and their children out of their present income. When food prices go up it is not a question of paying more for the same food. They do not have the additional money with which to pay. Therefore, they must buy less and eat less. A & P Food Stores last year distributed at retail $881,700,000 worth of food at a net profit of 1%.

This food was sold to the public at prices averaging from eight to ten percent lower than the prices of the average individual grocer. Literally, millions of sales were made at prices twenty-five percent lower than those of the average individual grocer. This saving of eight to twenty-five cents on each dollar is of vital importance to these millions of families. If they were denied the opportunity to buy at these lower prices it would simply mean that in millions of homes they would have to leave meat off the table another day a week, eat less fresh fruits and vegetables, give the growing child one bottle of milk less every week or stint on butter, cheese, poultry, eggs and many other of the most nourishing foods.

In the last 10 years during the greatest period of chain store growth, the number of individual dealers has increased rather than decreased. We maintain that there is nothing wrong when these dealers charge more than we charge. They must charge these prices in order to make a fair profit. The average grocer will, upon request, deliver the groceries to the customer's door and in many cases extends credit to some of his customers. Delivery service costs money. The grocer must put this added cost in the prices to his customers. In the same way the extension of credit involves the expense of bookkeeping, the tying up of capital, and credit losses. There is nothing wrong in the higher mark up of the individual grocer, because he is rendering a service that justifies his prices.

If some customers can afford and voluntarily elect to pay a higher price for groceries and meats because they want credit or because they want delivery to their homes it is quite proper that they should pay an additional price for such service. However, the millions of families in this country whose income is limited and who can have more and better food because they are willing to pay cash and carry home their own purchases, should not be denied this opportunity. Millions of families of limited incomes can only enjoy their present standard of living through these economies and savings. These millions of American families have helped us build a great business because they believe we have rendered them a great service. The company, therefore, has an obligation and a duty to protect the interests of these customers.

4. The Interests of the Farmer

Eight million farm families are engaged in producing the food consumed by the American people. All of the farm homes in America, therefore, comprising one-fourth of all of the population of the United States, have a direct interest in the methods of distribution by which the products of their labor and of the soil are marketed.

Approximately 30% of their production is marketed through the chain food stores; about 70% through individual grocers. Their fruits, vegetables and other foodstuffs are sold through the chain stores at prices averaging 8% to 10% cheaper than the prices at which they are sold by many grocers. If the farmer sells a given product to both at the same price, the individual grocer must charge the public more to take care of his higher costs. Thus 30% of the farmer's products reach the public at low prices and 70% of his products reach the public at higher prices.

If the public cannot consume a given crop of apples, potatoes, berries or any other product, at the prices at which they are offered, these goods do not move from the grocer's shelves; a surplus accumulates and the farmer finds that he either cannot sell the balance of his crop or must sell it at a substantial loss. Only too often a situation arises when it is literally cheaper for the farmer to let his apples or his peaches rot on the ground than to expend the labor costs necessary to pack and ship them. Every farm economist knows that a 10% surplus does not mean 10% less return to the farmer but often more than 20% less return.

In other words, the farmer's problem is to sell his products at the cost of production plus a fair profit and to get them to the public with as few intermediate costs and profits as possible. It is therefore obviously unfair to the farmer to propose legislation which would, at a single blow, wipe out 30% of his distributing machinery—and that 30% the part which maintains the price to the farmer yet reaches the public at low cost because of economical distribution. It would be just as unfair to the farmer to propose putting out of business all of the individual grocers of the country who distribute 70% of his produce. Both chain food stores and individual grocers perform a distributive function vital to the interests of the farmer. If either failed to function the farmer would be faced with tremendous surpluses and heartbreaking losses.

For years the A & P has dealt with the farmers both as producers and consumers. We feel that we have a definite obligation and duty to oppose any legislative attack upon their best interests.

5. The Interests of Labor

Every business in this country has a vital interest in the purchasing power of labor. When labor has high wages and great purchasing power, everyone is prosperous. When labor's purchasing power is curtailed, all business suffers and the American standard of living is impaired. For many years it has been the wise policy of the national government to protect real wages and the purchasing power of the worker's dollar. Combinations or agreements to raise prices, thus reducing real wages, have been declared illegal.

It certainly seems strange that it should now be proposed to destroy a group of businesses for the frankly admitted reason that they furnish the necessities of life to the wage earner and his family at low prices. There are approximately 900,000 workers directly employed in the chain store industry. What course is open to us but to oppose the action of a man who, at a time when more than 11,000,000 wage earners are already out of work and 3,000,000 families on relief, proposes a bill that would add almost another million to the roll of unemployed, wipe out 30% of the distributing machinery of all of the farmers of the United States, and raise the cost of living of the wage earners of the United States.

We believe that our organization has rendered a great service to the American people and that it is as a result of that service that we have prospered. If we consulted our own interest it would be very easy to stop and enjoy whatever leisure we have earned. No one is dependent upon us except our fellow workers. However, after the fullest consideration of all interests, we have arrived at the decision that we would be doing less than our full duty if we failed to oppose, by every fair means, legislation proposed by the Honorable Wright Patman.

As we have said, Mr. Patman is an able politician, an able lobbyist and an able propagandist. In that field he is an expert. We are experts only in the grocery business. We believe the chain stores have a right to present their case to the American people. We will not go into politics, nor will we establish a lobby in Washington for the purpose of attempting to influence the vote of any member of the Congress. We expect only a full and fair opportunity to present the case for the chain stores as a great service organization for the American people.

Since the task we have set before us is one involving the widest dissemination of complete information to all of the American people, and since this is a profession in which we are not expert, we have engaged Carl Byoir & Associates, public relations counsel, to do this work. We realize that our views are seldom news. We know, therefore, that we must be prepared to spend a substantial sum of money in telling our story to all of the American people. We declare now that this money will be spent in the dissemination of information through paid advertising and every medium available to us, and in cooperating in the work or formation of study groups among consumers, farmers and workers, which provide open forums for a discussion of all measures affecting the cost of living.

We believe that when the American people have all of the facts they will make their decision known to their representatives in Congress. As Americans we will be content with that decision.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1938.

Don't hesitate to elect a poor man to office—he can soon correct that after he gets in.

In America any boy has a chance to grow up and become president. In Europe he's lucky if he has a chance to grow up.

The least that Florida can do, under the circumstances, is to offer $40 a week—possibly on Tuesdays—to those who will brave the hurricane season.

Loans and Investment.

UPTURN in the stock market since the pledging of peace in Europe, for the immediate future at least, has been reassuring. Evidently there are still many people with money to invest who believe business is capable of making a profit and that industrial and commercial securities are good investments.

That is one side of the picture. The other side is not so good. Economists agree that real recovery requires large use of new capital in business, and there is as yet not much indication of that. The New York Times says:

"The plain fact is that, after what seemed to be a good beginning, and in a season when the normal seasonal pattern calls for a sharp rise in business loans, the big banks here have shown a persistent deflation in the borrowings of business customers. This can mean only that there is no disposition on the part of business hereabouts to expand inventories and to reach out for new credit. It casts an uncertain light upon the immediate business outlook."

Moreover, as an economist observes, "the essence of recovery is new capital for the expansion of old and the development of new enterprise." There is some improvement in that lately, but far less than genuine recovery demands. Generally speaking, people are not launching new business enterprises or greatly extending their present enterprises.

Careless Hunters Start Fire.

ONE WAY in which a thoughtless or careless act of one person can work to the detriment of many was disclosed in an item in yesterday's News-Journal which told of the damage caused to a farmer's woods by hunters who neglected to put out a fire they had apparently started to "smoke out" some squirrels.

Spread of the fire threatened the entire woods tract for a time and neighboring farmers joined in cutting down trees to save others.

With few exceptions, farmers are friendly people and the first inclination of many of them is to welcome hunters—but experiences such as this tend to discourage a hospitable attitude and to increase the number of "No Hunting Allowed" signs in rural sections.

What some hunters, and others, seem to forget, in their interpretation of "personal liberty," is that farmers have exclusive rights to their property, except as they extend invitation or give permission to come upon it, and that hunters are trespassers unless they secure this permission. When they are hunting on a farmer's property they are in reality guests of the owner and are obligated to behave themselves properly and to do no damage to property, stock or crops.

Government Hits Thursday Pensions.

SPREAD of promotion of the $30-every-Thursday pension scheme may be held in check by action of the federal government in forbidding banks to accept proposed pension warrants as legal tender.

It is an excellent thing for the voice of authority to be heard on this subject before a lot of gullible people in states other than California have become victims of such frauds as are being innocently or purposely perpetrated by pension scheme promoters of all sorts, who are making easy money from contributions of deluded old folks who can ill afford paying assessments for organization upkeep.

While the profligacy of the federal administration, in its wasteful expenditure of billions of dollars of public money within the past few years, may be held largely responsible for encouraging economic illiterates in the belief that additional billions can be paid out each year to non-producers, the fact remains that it is the workers who must do the paying and that it is the workers, also, who must do the final deciding as to how much they can pay. The $100 a month worker, for instance, may be excused for objecting to paying $200 a month to a non-worker.

Difference In Newspapers.

THERE is professional satisfaction, and should be popular satisfaction too, in what college professors returning from Europe say about American newspapers.

With the exception of England, they report, "there is no press in Europe to compare with America's." Usually foreign papers are fatally handicapped by government censorship. In such countries as Germany and Italy people are not informed and it is impossible to know what they are thinking. Even in France and Czechoslovakia, where there is no public censorship, newspapers are largely personal organs and there is no thorough coverage of the news.

England itself, from which our journalism derives, covers public and private events less fully than our papers, and prints much less news from foreign countries. In this last respect we have made immense progress in a quarter of a century. In the recent war crisis we knew far more about what was going on in Europe than Europeans themselves knew.

Too Many Teeth Pulled.

IT IS RIGHT to remove infected teeth, says Dr. Russell L. Haden, chief of the medical division of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation, but there is too much tooth-pulling.

"When the X-ray is negative," that is, showing no positive evidence of infection, he insists, "other things should be studied before the tooth is extracted. The condition and age of the patient should be considered.

"Nutrition is a big part of the management of a patient. Some people cannot wear plates or use them. They should not be left to gum it for the rest of their lives unless there is serious necessity for removing their teeth."

It is surprising how many people seem willing to part unnecessarily with the masticating tools nature gave them, in order to install a symmetrical set of artificial dentures.

Keeping Step

—By C. P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.— The world, including this country, hasn't much idea what has been going on recently excepting war stuff. The European situation has crowded everything else off the front pages or snuffed it out altogether. Radio newscasts likewise have dealt with nothing much but the story of events centering around Czechoslovakia.

To be sure, President Roosevelt, away over here, broke into the big headlines, but he did it by appealing to the overseas folks to settle their differences of opinion rationally, thus entitling himself to representation into the current news picture—a darned conspicuous representation. Any competent journalist hates to be forced to concentrate, day after day, on the same old yarn. But what choice has he? There isn't anything else. Even if there were, and he tried to put a little variety into his dope, nobody would pay a bit of attention to him.

Things Have Happened.

AS A matter of fact, a few things HAVE happened.

Losing its way, a West Indian hurricane, which ought to have specialized on the Gulf coast, ravaged Long Island and eastern New England, doing about a billion dollars' worth of damage and killing five or six hundred people. It did, indeed, get two or three days' first page attention, but it was subordinated. Why! I've known a small-bore mid-western tornado to get a better play than that hurricane did.

Incidentally, it was a hurricane which was accompanied by several bad floods in a section where the government has been doing a deal of so-called flood control work, at enormous expense. It proved ineffective. There's a howl to the purport that it WOULD have proved effective if it REALLY had been flood control work. The complaint is that it was NOT flood control work but power development. The complainants contend that this implies a terrible piece of governmental mismanagement. But can they get anyone to listen to them? Not a bit of it; all the general public gives any heed to is the European situation.

Then, there's a national railroad strike been voted, against a 15 percent wage cut.

President Roosevelt has declared a country-wide "emergency."

In normal times, I would guess that this would make the United States' hair curl. Now it's a yarn which editors relegate to the back pages. True, the strike may not eventuate; efforts are being made to forestall it. Still, with no world war threatening, think how the press would have been full of it!

As to wars. Spain's and the Orient's no longer are appreciably noticed—a stick or so of type on the paper's insides are all the consideration that their pewee battles are accorded. Berlin, London, Paris, Rome, Moscow, Prague and Munich win the streamers.

Our Domestic Politics.

OUR own congressional campaign also has been overshadowed by Europe.

The purge is pretty well forgotten.

Which is an embarrassment to Chairman Hamilton of the Republican national committee. He had counted on the Democratic party split to benefit G. O. P. candidates.

It isn't doing it satisfactorily from the G. O. P. viewpoint, because voters' minds are diverted to foreign issues.

"F. D.'s" attitude evidently "took" extremely well.

Naturally that's a great help to local Democratic political aspirants. Their regional issues are erased by the big international issue.

Chairman Hamilton is doing his best to localize the congressional fight.

He has a hard job on his hands to do it.

Mansfield's Future in Aviation

—By JAMES R. (BUD) HARRINGTON

(Editor's Note—Following is the conclusion of an article by James R. (Bud) Harrington, pilot and instructor, on Mansfield's possibilities for development in aerial transportation. This article stresses the need for completion of Mansfield's airport.)

AT PRESENT, the Mansfield airport has four runways 150 feet wide by 2,500 feet long, but instead of being hard-surfaced, they are simply of sod and are the result of mowing, rolling and maintenance by private flyers at the airport.

There are four privately-owned airplanes hangared at the airport by Mansfield residents and, if suitable airport facilities were available, there would without question, be at least two or three times as many aircraft owned and operated by Mansfield citizens, inasmuch as there are at present approximately 50 individuals who have already learned to solo an airplane or are in the process of learning at our airport.

In the spring, there are periods of from four to eight weeks during which is is absolutely impossible for aircraft to take off or land at our airport, which is extremely hazardous for transient pilots who might attempt to land not knowing the condition of the field.

Although it is not known by the majority of the people in Mansfield, hardly a day goes by but that an aircraft from some other part of the country lands at the Mansfield port for gasoline or other service.

Unhappy Landings.

Lack of runways on two occasions last year resulted in aircrafts being mired for several days and in one instance, almost resulted in a serious accident that could have caused the death of four occupants of one of the ships.

In addition to runways, other facilities that are badly needed at the airport include landing and obstruction lights so that the port can be used for night landings and takeoffs with absolute safety. At present we are forced to place kerosene flares on the sod runways at intervals of approximately 500 feet and depend entirely upon the skill of the pilot in being able to ascertain his heights from the ground and safely land the airplane.

The airport also lacks water and rest-room facilities to accommodate not only transient flyers and others, but the large number of people who occasionally collect there to witness the piloting of aircraft and for special events, such as the good-will air tours, etc.

A short distance from Mansfield is the Department of Commerce intermediate field at Hayesville, which consists of a landing area, smaller than our Mansfield port, but which is maintained by the Department of Commerce and equipped with night lighting and a weather station.

The Department of Commerce maintains a crew of five men of which there is always one on duty at all times during the 24 hours to operate radio facilities at Hayesville field for the aid of aerial navigation.

Primarily that field was organized to take care of air traffic on the Cleveland-Columbus, but due to its location, it is slightly east of that route.

At the Crossroads.

Since that time the Transcontinental and Western Airlines have established a route between Chicago and Pittsburgh which lies directly over our airport. We, therefore, are fortunate at being at the crossroads of two important airways, one serving Chicago, Pittsburgh and New York; and the other Cleveland to Columbus, to the west coast.

The Department of Commerce has shown interest from time to time in moving their intermediate field and equipment to Mansfield, providing, of course, that we provide the facilities here to accommodate them.

At the same time, in view of our advantageous location, on the two airways, a fully developed airport would invite feeder line service so that the airlines could properly land their aircraft and consequently, serve us not only from a passenger standpoint, but could also render airmail and air express service.

It would be most unfortunate if we failed to realize the importance of establishing an air center in this locality at this time, so as to be the first to attract not only civilian air transportation, but also passenger, air mail and express service before some other communities close to us provide facilities and thereby attract that means of transportation.

We certainly do not want those in the future to accuse us of not recognizing the progress of aviation and providing proper facilities.

To provide landing facilities, it would only be necessary to construct the equivalent of four highways three hundred feet wide by approximately 2,500 feet long which is no different than requesting a paved road within the city limits of equal length, and until we supply such facilities, air traffic is going to avoid us and we will not enjoy the many advantages that the skyways offer.

After landing facilities are installed, then other aids such as lighting equipment, waiting rooms and other buildings could be provided to complete the project.

It would seem, offhand, that it should be the duty of local organizations and the city proper to immediately make a study of the most economical means of developing our airport to completion and to provide the funds necessary to maintain it, so that we can keep abreast of progress and enjoy the advantages now being received by many cities that have gone forward in inviting air travel to their communities.

How Growth of Cells Causes Tumors.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE last of the fundamental processes of disease which we have to consider is tumor formation. We said when we were considering inflammation that it was defensive and protective in character, and also that it was a change involving only cells that were always normally present in the body.

Neither of these things can be said of tumor formation. It appears to have no purpose. It is not initiated in response to invasion of a foe, or of an injury (as inflammation is,) and often the cells involved are not at all like the cells present in the adult body.

For that reason the subject—which includes the subject of cancer is objectionable to many people. But since we are trying to get a broad view of the nature of all disease processes we must include it.

A tumor is the purposeless growth of a group of cells. It may involve any kind of cell in the body. Thus we have bone tumors—osteoma, and muscle tumors—myoma, and tumors of fibrous connective tissue—fibroma, and tumors of epithelial tissue—epithelioma.

The cells begin to multiply very rapidly when a tumor begins—just as rapidly as in the first stages of life when the child is being formed. They seem suddenly to be endowed with the vigor and energy of new life. This has led to the theory that the cause of tumors is what are called embryonal nests—nests of cells that have lain quiescent since before birth, and then begin to take on the rapid characteristics of growth of that early period. This theory, however, cannot be proved in all cases.

Another distinction in tumor is that between benign and malignant. The terms explain themselves. The malignant tumors include cancer. A benign tumor may grow vigorously for a while and then stop altogether. The malignant tumor never stops growing. The cells continue to multiply if left alone, until death supervenes.

The other characteristic of the malignant tumor that is different from the benign is that it gets into the blood stream or the lymphatic stream and sets up growth in a different part of the body from that of its origin. This is called metastasis. One cell from the tumor apparently will get into the lymph stream, and lighting on a lymph node begin to multiply with great rapidity.

The body offers no defense of itself to tumors. But medical science has developed most efficient means to stop them. Surgery X-ray and radium are those means. Early diagnosis is important. The subject may not be pleasant, but in this life it has to be faced, and those who do it promptly and courageously win the victory.

A Farmer's Diary

Goodbye to Laddie.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I DO NOT know what awoke me, but I heard the collie dog whine, once. Then all was quiet. I thought I had been mistaken, and went back to sleep. Next morning a half-gnawed bone lay under the maple, but no Laddie came to greet me with extended paw and friendly bark.

How eagerly he would seek to know my mood, and if he found it gay and free, he would prance and bound about an imaginary circle, stopping with his long nose low between his forepaws, his tawny body alert to dodge away in the other direction if I feinted at him. This morning he was nowhere to be seen . . . and I had a feeling he would never return.

I whistled and called. No answer. I walked down the road and over to the woods. I came back and searched the south pasture, calling loudly—and a little plaintively, perhaps. My voice echoed back from the hill. A lark sang and a bluebird warbled from the nearest tree, but I scarcely heard them. The sunshine bathed the scene with light, but I did not feel its warmth. I went back, silently, to the house.

The children missed him first that evening. They called and called. They consoled each other with the thought that he had gone off once before, for a day or two, and then returned. They watched, holding back their tears, for several days, but he did not come.

They recalled his puppyhood, eight years ago, and how we bathed him in the washing machine. They spoke of how he used to frisk and frolic — how well he knew when they were tired or hurt. They remembered how he had guarded each of the boys, in turn, as toddling babies. They looked at a snapshot, made quite recently, when Laddie walked into the foreground, and sat, grinning at the four of them . . .

They wished, between sobs, that they had treated him better, petted him more. It was their first real grief, the loss of their playmate, friend and companion. They do not want another puppy—yet.

Listen, World!

Why Shouldn't They Know the Answers?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THAT 8:30 tide of laughing girl faces, swooping to their work on clicking heels—

Perhaps you've condemned their independence . . . despised their sophistication . . . wondered why they couldn't be the Innocent, Helpless Young Things of 1893 instead of the Knowing, Young Hoydens of 1938? If so, here's an answer which may jar your complacency . . . YOUTH DEFENDING YOUTH, in the person of John C. Montgomery, jr., of Miami, Fla. "LISTEN OLDSTERS," says John:

"I know it's the current fad to attack the modern girl in public print . . . wailing because she isn't as gentle and sweet as her bygone sisters . . . viewing her with darkest suspicion because 'she knows so much.'

"BUT WHY SHOULDN'T THE MODERN GIRL KNOW ALL THE ANSWERS? WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO HER . . . AND TO THOSE WHO DEPEND ON HER . . . IF SHE DIDN'T?

"The girl of the 19th century were sheltered darlings. They had no storms to face, no harsh decisions to make, no pressure or speed to endure. The girl of today is out in the open, taking the brunt of responsibilities which, formerly, were borne by the strong, dominant male. She is the child of the shell-shocked war generation . . . the daughter of the man who came back from the trenches disillusioned—

"HOW CAN SHE ESCAPE THE WISDOM WHICH COMES FROM SUCH DANGEROUS PROPINQUITY? WHY SHOULDN'T SHE COVER HER INNER DISMAY WITH A GAY MOCK OF GAY BANTER . . . HOW LONG WOULD SHE EAT IF SHE DIDN'T?

"If those who so easily condemn the Modern Working Girl would try to understand the load she carries and the struggle she must make . . . if they would once glimpse the magnificent courage she exhibits . . . they would bow their heads in shame. AND INSTEAD OF SEEING SHAMELESS HUSSIES IN THESE LITTLE SHOP GIRLS WHO SERVE THEM FOR A MERE PITTANCE, THEY WOULD BEHOLD A REGIMENT OF GLORIOUS JEANNE D'ARCS."

J. C. Montgomery, Jr.—age 25.
Miami, Fla.

In the names of all those gallant little girls, I'm thanking you, John Montgomery, jr. Some day history, reviewing them, will recognize their epic fight and pay them proper tribute. But you are giving them what they deserve NOW—THE CROIX DE GUERRE FOR THEIR GALLANT HIGH-HEARTED FIGHT! God bless you for it!

Timely Editorial

Stop That Violence.

Democracy is not put in good light before the world by brick-throwing mobs. Those Union City, N. J., anti-Nazis, who ganged up to prevent a meeting of the German-American Volksbund were justifying the charge frequently made by orators in the totalitarian countries that democracy in America fails even to preserve order among its own citizens.

Liberty presupposes individual self-control. Only those are entitled to claim the privileges of freedom who are willing to comply with this requirement.

If there is cause for complaint against the American organization sympathizing with the Hitler regime in Germany, those complaints should be made to constituted authorities and prosecuted in the courts. Democracy signally fails when its citizens show their distrust of its institutions by resorting to disorder and violence rather than committing their cause to the processes of law and order.—Detroit News.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

A Hundred Years?

They say, "What difference will it make
A hundred years from now?"
But there's no need to go such length
Or so much time allow.

A week's enough, a single week,
For full forgetfulness
Of almost anything that brings
You present hour's distress.

A week, a month, a year at best,
Few things important last
Beyond those spaces; most we do
Is lost soon to the past.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The recent crisis in Europe seemed to be a "breather" for the communists in New York. People didn't go around taunting them while the USSR was closely allied with Britain and France in the Czech affair.

During this period of indecision abroad I had occasion to attend a Red meeting, and I was surprised to find them looking like anybody else. They wore suits of clothes, with ties and collars, and even shoes. Then a man with a sweater and a mass of wavy red hair got up and made a speech. I couldn't understand what he was talking about, but I did gather that the Fascists must be destroyed before the world revolution could successfully be brought about.

AFTER the speech a motion picture was shown and it told a story of oppression in czarist days. The only trouble was that the grand dukes were such fine looking fellows that the poor oppressed underdog looked like a thug. Too, he was a very bad actor, and the meeting wound up with everybody cheering for the grand dukes.

Later I attended a meeting for the Czechs in Madison Square Garden, and the thought occurred that if the Czechs had all these New York patriots at home they wouldn't need help from the Allies to fight their battles. There were many communists attending this meeting too, all cheering loudly for the little beleaguered state and casting dark looks in the direction of Yorkville, which is the German neighborhood in Manhattan. For a while I thought they might mistake East River for the Rhine, but after awhile everybody agreed that the Czechs should be helped and, amid much hissing for Herr Hitler, everybody went home.

ON THE way home I dropped by a nightclub in Greenwich Village just as a white-headed gentleman came in. He was an impressive figure, and by the way he took to the rumba music I recognized him instantly. By their hot-cha-ing ye shall know them, you know. It was former President Machado of Cuba, out for a little Latin exercising. The former executive, who was flushed from his capitol a few years back like a wild pigeon, is one of New York's foremost exponents of the tango and the rhumba. He is a tireless dancer and can dance the night through (in fact, he frequently does) without sign of fatigue.

Which reminds me that probably the best informal dancer in New York is a former machine gunner in the German army. But he is an American citizen now and insists nothing could induce him to return to Europe. Why?

"I like this freedom over here," he says. "Never saw anything like it before."

Our ex-gunner now makes his living selling insurance, and he sells lots of it. He has never danced professionally and doesn't expect to, although he has had opportunities to go on the stage. "I dance for fun because I like it, and my wife, she is the best dancer, for me, that I ever saw."

His wife is a petite American girl from Cleveland, with grey, laughing eyes and dark hair. The only Fatherland he's interested in, she says, is THIS one. To which he supplements a firm "Yes." He didn't even say, "Ja."

Book of the Week

"IN HAZARD," by Richard Hughes; (Harpers: $2.50).

UNLESS you are quite insensitive to the uses which can be made of words, you will not stop reading Richard Hughes' "In Hazard" until you have finished it. It is a study, in monochrome—only one thing happens, and it is all one color. But it is so subtly contrived that this becomes a virtue, not a defect.

Probably "In Hazard" can be read as the story of a storm, like Conrad's "Typhoon." Actually it seems to this reader more a study of fear, or at least a study of the effect produced on the bodies and minds of a ship's crew by an unexpected emergency which probably will finish them.

The "Archimedes" was a 9,000-ton freighter built in the best British tradition, manned by British officers with a good Chinese crew in the stokehole and on the deck. The company which owned her was sound, quite as sound as the "Archimedes" herself. And one day the ship left Norfolk for the Far East.

A few days later, in the Caribbean, a hurricane hit her in spite of the fact that by all the weather rules the hurricane season was weeks past. It was not even a usual hurricane; it was much worse than the usual, and its unpredictability extended to its actions after it caught up the "Archimedes." Nothing happened as it should.

Bit by bit, the storm sheared off the funnel, deck houses, hatches and whatever else could be taken. With the funnel went the fires, and the ship died. Normally the ship should have run through one side of the hurricane, passed through the center, and then with reasonable expedition, the far side. Instead, the dead ship was carried with the storm, over banks which normally she could not have crossed at all.

Mr. Hughes follows the captain, the senior officers, the juniors, the apprentices, the crew relentlessly. Their emotions are laid bare, made as palpable as their physical movements. Before the book is done the reader has been inside the skin of every creature aboard the "Archimedes," down to Thomas the lemur. It is an experience he will not forget soon.—By J. S.

BARE VIEWS ON OHIO WELFARE REFORM MOVES

Sawyer, Bricker Promise to Abolish Politics, Expand Juvenile Research.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Ohio's candidates for governor, speaking at the Ohio welfare conference here, today had pledged themselves to similar measures to improve the state's welfare machinery.

Charles Sawyer, Democratic nominee, and John W. Bricker, Republican candidate, agreed on these points of a welfare program:

1. Elimination of politics from the welfare department.
2. Expansion of the bureau of juvenile research.
3. A welfare building program at minimum expense.
4. Study of the relief problem, possibly aimed to place relief administration under the welfare department.
5. Classification of prisoners in state institutions.

Bricker said he favored reorganization of the welfare department as recommended by the Sherrill governmental survey of 1935. He said this would create four major divisions within the department.

Sawyer said there should be "mutual respect between government and social workers, which has not always been true in Ohio."

Long Range Program.

"It is my intention to attack the relief problem at once," Sawyer said. "We must think of relief in terms of a long range problem. While it is government's duty to feed the hungry, there is more at stake than stomachs. If man's moral fiber is not to suffer at the hands of charity, he must be given work to do. Therefore, any such long range program must include provision for public works projects of permanently useful work."

Bricker said that "there should be no failure of co-operation between the federal, state and local governments in seeing to it that prompt and adequate distribution of relief is made."

"The cost of relief should be paid out of current revenues, with an appropriate financial responsibility divided among the three levels of government," he said. "There should be no mortgaging of the future to meet county relief needs. . . . Administration of relief should be by local governments to the fullest extent possible, without waste, red tape or favoritism."

Sawyer and Bricker continued today to make campaign material out of support by labor organizations and leaders.

Sawyer headquarters announced that he had endorsement of the Canton Federation of Labor and Otto Brach, of Toledo, vice president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor.

Bricker headquarters announced that the Building Trades council of Hamilton had rescinded a previous endorsement of Sawyer and had voted to support Bricker "not only because Mr. Bricker is free of the taint of the CIO but also because he has an excellent labor record."

SATURDAY'S YOUR LAST CHANCE TO FILE FOR 4,000 STATE JOBS

The state civil service commission today issued a warning that Saturday had been set as the deadline for filing applications for examinations for the 4,000 jobs to be filled by the Ohio Unemployment Compensation commission.

The examinations will be held to prepare an eligibility list from which personnel will be selected to maintain the 58 district offices to be set up throughout the state as provided by the recent enactment of the Unemployment Benefit act which becomes operative Jan. 1, 1939.

The Associated Press reported that an unprecedented demand had necessitated the printing of 115,000 application blanks. Commissioner Ralph Emmons said that "great interest has been shown to date, but not as many applications have been filed as we expected."

The tests, financed by a $40,000 Social Security board grant, were scheduled primarily to provide approximately 4,000 new employes for the unemployment compensation commission, but have been extended to include other state departments.

Emmons said that the new eligibility lists would remain operative for two years to care for expansion of the unemployment program, and to replace provision employment in other departments.

Examinations will be conducted at the American Legion home in Mansfield simultaneously with 13 other cities in Ohio for seven days, beginning Oct. 25, the commission announced.

Positions to be filled between Nov. 15 and July 1, 1939, range from clerical jobs paying $70 a month to executive posts with a $350-per-month salary.

FORMS CLASSES

Red Cross Plans Instructions in Home Hygiene.

Plans for opening classes in home hygiene by the Red Cross were under way today, according to Gertrude B. English, executive secretary, who pointed out it is one of the new services of the county chapter which will be developed during the coming year.

Two graduate nurses, Miss Florence Wagner and Mrs. Warren Fort, will be in charge of the classes which will be held at Red Cross headquarters in the Bowers building, and classes will be open to any one interested. Each course takes about 30 hours of study and demonstrations. Classes will be held twice a week for one and two hours.

The purpose of the service is to aid homemakers and prospective home makers in meeting the everyday problems of health and illness in the home, including care of bed patients, Mrs. English explained.

Registrations for class work may be made at the Red Cross office.

ORGANIZER FOR UNION ON STAND AT NLRB HEARING

Says Replacing of Skilled Worker With One for Less Money Unfair to Labor.

The National Labor Relations board's hearing of charges of unfair labor practices against the Ideal Electric and Manufacturing company today evolved into a question of whether a firm has the right to lay off a worker and employ another in his place at a lower salary in times of business stress.

Edwin Beal, Delaware, International organizer for the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, a CIO affiliate, which filed charges against the Mansfield firm, said on the witness stand that he considered it unfair to labor to replace a skilled man with one who would work for less money.

Beal was on the stand for direct questioning yesterday afternoon and for cross-examination most of this morning. He asserted that officials of the Ideal company refused to bargain with him in "a bona fide manner" in an attempt to settle labor grievances between union employes and the Ideal company management.

Follows Laying Off of 2.

Charges of discrimination against union employes were filed with the NLRB by Local 705 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union after Roy A. Conn and Oscar B. Killinger were laid off at the Ideal plant last winter.

The union said the company's action involved labor discrimination. Company officials contend the men were dismissed temporarily because there was no work for them at the wages they were receiving. Killinger was re-instated a month later, but Conn was replaced with a worker at less pay, the union said.

With at least a dozen more witnesses to be examined before NLRB Examiner Webster Powell at the courthouse, the hearing was expected to continue into next week.

Testimony at the trial is taken by Atty. Edward R. Sterling, Canton, official reporter for the NLRB, and will be submitted to Washington for a decision of the labor board.

Attys. Thomas F Veach and Earl W. LeFever, Cleveland, represent the Ideal Electric company, and Atty. Max W. Johnstone, Cleveland, is counsel for the labor board.

BANDIT GIVES UP

Tramps Streets And Finally Surrenders to Officer.

BOSTON —(INS)— For hours Theodore Baker, 24, of Nacogdoces, Texas, tramped Boston streets.

Like "Diogenes," Baker searched for the honest man.

Encountering Patrolman Peter Hargadon, Baker approached the officer and said, "You're the man I'm looking for—you've got a kind face."

Troubled with a bothering conscience, Baker told the officer he was the bandit wanted for a $6 gasoline station holdup in Greenfield.

TEST SCHOOL BUSES

SHELBY—State highway patrolmen today inspected 19 school buses in this district.

ASHLAND PARK PROJECT LACKS WPA APPROVAL

Concert Bowl Proposal Fails to Get OK; Workers Needed on Road Program.

ASHLAND — Ashland's Brookside bowl project has been rejected at least temporarily by the Works Progress Administration.

Plans of the project provided for the construction of a bowl at the city park as a place for band concerts and other programs. Practically all the work on the bowl proper would have been hand labor.

According to a letter accompanying the returned blueprints and other forms, John F. Wagner, senior engineer of the WPA in Akron, wrote: "Due to the fact that we have only approximately 90 men in Ashland county on county roads, we do not believe it is possible to undertake the Brookside park project for some time. The county road project will carry all our load in Ashland county for over a year and we have promised the county commissioners that the work will be carried on as now in operation."

ASKS FINAL TRANSFER

ASHLAND — Motions to hold the trial of Don B. Soles, state highway department employe, in some city other than in Ashland county and to have a judge from outside the county hear the case will probably be argued on either Oct. 14 or 15.

A request from Judge C. C. Chapman asks Chief Justice Carl F. Weygandt to assign a judge to Ashland county to hear the motions next week.

It is expected that the judge will be assigned here either for Friday or Saturday. An affidavit of prejudice was filed against Judge Chapman when a motion was filed in behalf of Soles to have an outside judge hear the case.

HURT IN ACCIDENT

ASHLAND—Miss Ada Shafer, 20, of Jeromesville R. D. 2, was taken to Samaritan hospital here when the car which she was driving collided with one driven by Peter J. Helbert of Loudonville R. D. 3, near Mohicanville Tuesday evening. Although Miss Shafer's condition was reported as good Wednesday, she had a fractured jaw.

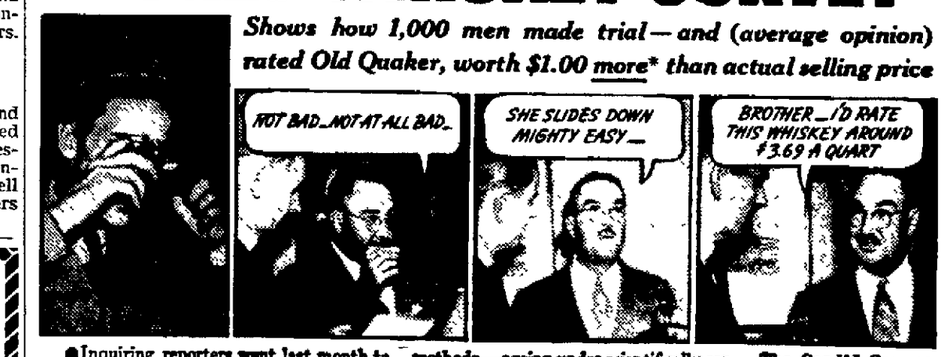
CANDID CAMERA "SHOOTS" SECRET WHISKEY SURVEY

Shows how 1,000 men made trial—and (average opinion) rated Old Quaker, worth $1.00 more* than actual selling price



● Inquiring reporters went last month to 1,000 men—men in all walks of life—living in various parts of the nation. The object was to get 1,000 men's opinions regarding Old Quaker, now 3 years old.

RESULT: The average net opinion of these 1,000 men was this: 3-year Old Quaker rivals many fine whiskies that are much more expensive! And specifically—3-year Old Quaker is worth $1.39 MORE per quart than its actual selling price.

We make the claim: Old Quaker at 3 years old has reached its Golden Age. Mature on every count — due to our special methods—ageing under scientifically controlled summer temperature and 51-times checked from grain to glass.

If what 1,000 men have said is true, we predict every man who enjoys good whiskey will want to try Old Quaker 3-year-old. For in these men's opinion it offers you a clear-cut saving of at least a dollar a quart. It's now on sale. Try it — then we'll be grateful to hear your frank opinion.

The Candid Camera "SHOTS" above show Frank R. Marsh, Salesman, making famous whiskey trial, while Investigator Anderson records his answers.

PLANS FOR 40TH ANNIVERSARY

Salvation Army Prepares for Observance in November; Board Hears Reports.

Plans for the observance of the 40th anniversary of the opening of the Salvation Army in Mansfield were outlined Wednesday noon at a meeting of corps officers and members of the Advisory board.

The Salvation Army opened its quarters the first week-end in November, 1879, with Captain C. B. Riggs as staff officer. She has since retired from active service as an officer, but will be present for the celebration in November, Adjutant David Brown said.

The advisory board includes Harry E. Hawley, chairman; John S. Jones, vice chairman; Mrs. V. H. Lodde, secretary; Charles Hoffman, Rev. Charles Sheriff, Dr. C. R. Damron, Mrs. John Pierce, Mrs. Emma McDaniels, Adjt. Brown and Lieut. R. L. Raines.

A financial report for the quarter ending Sept. 30 shows the corps operated at a deficit of $67. The report of charitable work showed that the following items had been distrubuted during the three-month period: 246 pairs of shoes, 62 pieces of furniture, 273 free meals to transients, 59 nights of lodgings to transients, transportation for three families, 1,399 garments, and two outings for 450 mothers and children.

BALANCE DROPS

$13,000 in County's General Fund Oct. 1, Auditor Says.

Richland county's general fund balance dropped more than $13,000 during September—from $26,886 to $13,802 Oct. 1, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe's monthly financial statement showed today.

The county spent $27,839 from its general fund during the month and received $14,755, the report showed.

Receipts of real estate taxes for the second half of the year boosted the undivided tax fund to $496,887 Overdrafts, representing tax fund advances to county sub-divisions totaled $170,921. Mansfield schools received $160,000 of that amount and the Lexington schools, $8,000.

The report showed $87,609 in the county's bond retirement fund and only $157 in the county road and bridge fund. Heavy demands for matching funds for WPA road and bridge projects reduced the fund to a much lower figure than usual, it was explained.

Showman Jailed As Lion Kills One, Terrorizes Town

BEAST ROAMS STREETS FOR THREE HOURS

300-Pound Animal Breaks Out of Cage, Pounces on Back of Man at Jersey Resort.

(By Associated Press)

WILDWOOD, N. J.—A manslaughter charge was lodged today against a boardwalk side show operator whose circus lion broke out of a cage, tore a man to death and for nearly three hours terrorized this resort city until slain by a policeman's bullet.

Recorder Lynn Byrne held Joseph Dobish, 50, without bail in connection with the death last night of Thomas Saito, 37, of Philadelphia, a Japanese auction room employe whose mangled body was found in a maze of pilings under the oceanfront boardwalk, nearly deserted in this off-season month.

Used In Motor Drome.

Until five weeks ago the 300-pound killer known as "Tuffy" was one of two lions strapped to a motorcycle side car while the driver roared around a steep-walled bowl called the "Wall of Death." Since then "Tuffy" had been inactive.

Last night "Tuffy" escaped from the cage and roamed the nearby boardwalk.

Saito was about to enter his parked automobile when the lion pounced from the elevated boardwalk upon the man's back and dragged him into the darkened recesses under the walk.

Only a few blocks away in the heart of the city terrified citizens barricaded home and stores while an alarm spread the tale of a man-killing lion on the loose.

As hours passed horror in the city increased and even distant streets became desolate. Police searchlights pierced the darkness as the posse combed the piling.

Then Patrolman John Gares, crossing the boardwalk, spied the lion bounding toward him. He waited, pistol ready. When the animal came within ten feet he fired. "Tuffy" fell dead at his feet with a bullet through his right eye.

Borah Joins Move for Farm Bill Revision

Up and Down THE STREET

There isn't much doubt about Mansfield's interest in its national pastime when factories and schools are wired up to catch play by play radio accounts of it. Yesterday J. H. Petree, president of the Perfection Bed Springs company, had a radio installed in the plant so employes could hear the opening game of the world series while they worked. At Senior high loud speakers have been placed in the auditorium so that students who have study periods can listen to the game when they haven't classes.

One time that Mansfield saw a show before it became a Broadway hit was last spring when Olsen and Johnson presented their revue, "Hellzapoppin" at the Madison theater. The show is now firmly entrenched at the 46th Street theater in the metropolis where it it packing them in and rolling the customers in the aisles, while the critics are calling it rowdy, slapstick, hokum, silly, sophomoric, impossible and a lot of other things. Nevertheless the cash customers line up for a block away from the box office. New York papers say it is one of the few times that a show has succeeded in the face of such a severe panning. Incidentally Mansfield liked it too.

Mansfielders will no longer slip and slide over the sections of glass block sidewalk on North Main and West Third streets on rainy days. The crystal block pavements which let light filter through into the basement rooms below the sidewalk, had been demolished today by workmen's sledges to make way for new concrete walks.

Mansfield Boy Scout officials received a surprise visit this week from Duffy Lafreniere of Gracefield, Quebec, who is the proprietor of Victoria lodge at Gracefield, where for the past two years Eagle Scouts from Mansfield have gone for their annual fishing and camping trip. The trip to Mansfield is the first time Lafreniere has ever been out of his native Quebec, Floyd Dent, area scout executive, says. Dent and C. I. Kimmel, county game warden, will return with Lafreniere next week when they go on their annual bear hunting trip.

Courthouse Dome 'Sit-Down' Striker Seized By Sheriff

ANDERSON, Ind.—(U.P.)—A sheriff's posse put a forceable end early today to the 16-hour sit-down strike of J. G. Stafford, itinerant steeplejack, on the Madison county courthouse dome here.

Stafford climbed the flagpole on the dome, 250 feet above the public square, yesterday morning and shouted to spectators below that he would stay there until county commissioners agreed to pay $150 they owed him.

This morning Deputy Sheriff Fred B. Gossett and five helpers slipped up on Stafford as he rested, hal fasleep, inside the steeple just beneath the dome. He had moved down from the pole shortly after midnight.

They seized him and carried him down to his automobile trailer dwelling. He made no effort to go back to the courthouse.

BLOCK ROADS IN HUNT FOR THUGS

Illinois Posses Seek to Trap Ohio Fugitives Identified in $60,000 Robbery.

(By International News Service)

OTTAWA, Ill. — State police and federal agents maintained a road blockade throughout northern Illinois to trap the two bandits who snatched $60,000 in cash from two bank messengers yesterday.

The robbers were believed to be prisoners who escaped from the London, O. prison farm on July 29, and were reported to be in hiding near here.

The victims of yesterday's daring holdup said the gunmen resembled pictures of Harry Zenz, who had been serving a life term for robbery at the farm and Chester Phelps, a one-to-seven year thief.

Both were dressed in overalls and had caps pulled low over their eyes when they stepped from behind a parked truck in front of Ray E. Thomas and Charles O'Reilly who were returning with the shipment of cash from the postoffice to the First National bank of Ottawa. The money had been sent by the federal reserve district in Chicago.

One of the bandits carried a machine gun and the other was armed with a gas gun and pistol. Caught by surprise on the fairly quiet downtown side street, the bank employes dropped the money which the gunmen scooped up and carried to a car parked nearby. They sped out of town before pursuit could be organized.

SHERIFF, BARING $1,800 SLOT 'TAKE,' TO FACE CROSS-QUIZ

(By Associated Press)

ELYRIA — Defense counsel trained cross-examination guns today upon Sheriff William F. Grall, ace witness for the state in the trial of five men charged with bribery in operating a Lorain county slot machine "racket."

Grall, who was promised immunity from prosecution as a voluntary grand jury witness, calmly testified yesterday that protection agreement netted him $1,800 during the last half of 1937.

The accused men are Harry Ziegman, William Peer, David Crawford, sr., and David Crawford, jr., of Lorain and Stanton S. Kobbs of Oberlin.

The sheriff told of an arrangement under which the defendants received certain territories in which they operate for payment of $2.50 weekly on each machine.

"The most machines we had out this year was 59," Grall said. "The most I ever got in one week was about $125."

In response to Prosecutor Howard R. Butler's request for details, Grall testified:

"They were to be allowed to operate unless complaints came in. We were not to pick up any machines or arrest any proprietors of places exhibiting them.

"We were to give the operators advance information if an investigation was to be made and we were not to allow outside operators to come in."

Defense Attorney Charles F. Adams has termed the alliance extortion by the sheriff's office.

He said his clients were told to pay or be driven out of the "slots" business.

Former Chief Deputy Sheriff William G. Smith and Alfred G. Bauer, chairman of the Elyria Democratic committee, testified of a 1937 meeting with the defendants at Bauer's home at which the protection agreement was made.

APPROVE DRAFT

Commissioners Okay Revised $180,000 County Budget.

County commissioners today had approved a revised budget draft providing $180,000 for operation of the county government in 1939, the same amount that was allotted for this year.

The draft, set up by the auditor and budget commission, also provides $54,000 for debt retirement and interest payments.

County funds will be derived from a two mill tax levy inside the 10-mill limitation, while a .6 of a mill levy outside the limitation will provide funds for the retirement of bonds for the county's share of improvements on state highways in the county, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said.

He said the road bond levy would be cut to .4 of a mill next year and will be taken off the books in 1940 when the bonds will be retired.

IDAHO SENATOR IN DEMAND FOR BROAD CHANGES

'Wheat and Cotton Farmers Suffering Terribly' He Says of Present Law.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, today swung to the support of Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith, South Carolina Democrat, in demands for wholesale revision of the farm relief law.

As discontent in the farm belt over low prices was reflected in an ugly temper on Capitol Hill, administration leaders frankly conceded President Roosevelt will have a rebellious congress on his hands next January.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, meanwhile, defended the farm program.

Farmers 'Suffering.'

"I am with Senator Smith on this farm problem," Borah told reporters "There must be substantial changes in the present law at the next session of congress. I don't know much about the trend of business in the cities, but I do know that the wheat and cotton farmers are suffering terribly."

Agitation was spreading among members of congress for substitution of the domestic allotment plan of farm aid for the existing soil conservation act, with its train of controls over what the farmer may plant or sell.

Under the domestic allotment plan the farmer would be guaranteed a certain price for the part of his output consumed domestically and he would receive the world price for exports.

But aside from farm relief, the legislative agenda for the impending session of congress was taking form on other fronts.

The trend of legislation will be foreshadowed by election returns next month—more New Deal laws if the voters so order in electing senators and representatives.

The president is expected to recommend continuation of the $500,000,000 miscellaneous sales taxes that expire next year. Senate and house leaders, charged with revenue legislation, were awaiting final figures from the treasury department before deciding whether there must be a net increase in tax rates.

The Wagner labor relations act seemed likely to be overhauled along with the social security act and the railroad laws. With the railroads generally conceded to be in financial difficulty, congressional lines were divided on proposed remedies.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Britain Eats Crow But Now It'll Get Ready to Whip Its Foe, Mr. Hitler

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—There have been complaints of my ability to think things through. These complaints have been placed on file and will receive attention in their regular order, but, as a preliminary report on the problem, I will say that the difficulty has been stated incorrectly.

The fact I do not think things through is no proof that I am unable to do so, and those who leap to this conclusion are themselves guilty of slapdash thinking. I can think things through, but I don't like to, because I always arrive at conclusions very disagreeable to me and find myself in the company of persons and beliefs with whom I would not be found dead.

For example, I see no difference between a Canadian youth of 18 and an American youth of the same age, and insist that it is no more the duty of the Canadian boy to go to Europe and fight for Czechoslovakia than of the American. I hold that the American has no such duty at all, and, therefore, that it would be wrong to hold Britain to a political pledge involving the risk of this Canadian boy's life.

Yet, the German seizure of parts of Czechoslovakia, and the infliction of brutal German rule on the minority population of that territory, is horrible to contemplate, and I cannot resist the temptation to propose that when Mr. Chamberlain is elevated to the peerage by way of reward for postponing the killing of the Canadian boy, he select, for his title, plain Lord Jim.

Now, there is a hairpin turn in this thought, but I planned it that way because I certainly can't commit the Canadian and American boys to such a fight, but still have to maintain my objections to the procedure in the Sudeten country and in Munich.

I could have started with the Canadian boy and thought him right through to a grave somewhere in Europe, but that is a terrible price to pay for one man's satisfaction in having thought straight. I prefer to start another thought about the folly of unpreparedness for war, especially in the presence of menacing preparations by a nation which is an enemy in all but the formal, declared sense.

Nazi Germany is the enemy of Great Britain and France and of this country, too, because Canada is a part of the British Empire, and we stand committed, not only by sentiment, but by consideration for our own peace and safety, to prevent any European enemy of Canada—and this goes for the Japanese, too—from obtaining a foothold in Canada.

So, now we come to the point of planning what to do, and have no option but to agree with Mr. Chamberlain's declaration in parliament that Great Britain was caught virtually unarmed, and therefore made a pious virtue of the surrender at Munich. Mr. Chamberlain went on to say that the British would now go into training to make the fight for their lives as soon as they feel that they are sufficiently muscled up.

The British sat down to a dish of crow and exclaimed, "What lovely pheasant!" and everybody who thinks Britain should have moved in and stopped the Germans, but without sacrifice of young lives, has been gnawing a piece of wing or neck, too. I don't count the Nazi soldiers as human beings, or youth, or anything like that, because they and the Russians are what I would call a faceless people—just human forms without features under their helmets, without human feelings, ideals or instincts.

So, now, I think the British and French should build terribly big air forces, big enough to outspeed the best the Germans and Italians can make, and at the rate of about two to one, and then let us see what happens. I know the Canadian boy stands a chance of being killed in the process, but that's the trouble with thinking things through.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—There's another one of those fellows in town.

You can spot them every time—and just by watching the feminine contingent of the studios they work in. You can follow the dreamy-eyed stenogs and mooning secretaries and designing starlets as they converge, under various pretexts, upon one sound stage. You can follow the ladies' eyes, in the studio restaurant, when the fellow walks in. And you know that the ladies are Struck. It follows, in usually inevitable sequence, that millions of other ladies will be Struck.

So you might as well meet Carl Esmond now. He won't be available for world-wide feminine ogling until "Dawn Patrol" is released, but it's in the cards that he will be ogged.

Carl, a tall husky blond gent who looks like Bob Montgomery, full-face, and like Franchot Tone, profile, has just a bit in "Dawn Patrol." He's the captured German flier who drinks and banters with Errol Flynn, David Niven and the others in a long key sequence. Already he's been tested for the lead opposite Bette Davis in "Dark Victory" and for the role of Maximillian with Davis and Muni in "The Phantom Crown."

Esmond is 31, a native of Vienna. He speaks English well enough when he has memorized his lines, acceptably even when he's just talking. He came to Hollywood because Louis B. Mayer, who saw him as Prince Albert in the London production of "Victoria Regina," couldn't wait to get him here.

Mayer wanted Esmond for the lead in "The Great Waltz." Esmond maneuvered out of his stage contract ahead of time, caught fast boats and trains to Hollywood—and did exactly nothing for six months. (One of his companions-in-waiting at Metro was Hedy Lamarr.)

His real name is Willy Eichberger. He changed it in London because too many fans addressed him as Willy Iceberg. In some cities of Europe his films played in competition to each other. He would be billed as Carl Esmond at one theater and as Willy Eichberger at another. Sometimes fans were confused to discover that the two names applied to the same six-feet-three of broad-shouldered actor.

He was an actor a long time before the banking house that paid him for more prosaic work discovered it. After that he became a full-time actor.

He made movies in Berlin and London and other European centers.

When producers of English films doubted his ability to speak the language, Esmond would send them a recording of his voice—without explaining how long and carefully he had rehearsed.

Although he hails from Vienna, it is pleasant to report that he is lacking in that characteristic labeled "continental charm." He's friendly, though, with an ingratiating, lively interest in people and things American — especially. I gathered, the cooking. He likes it. Modest, too. Admires Paul Muni, his fellow-townsman, extremely—but hasn't met him yet.

He plays a German war ace in the movie—but he can't abide air travel. He's unmarried — but there's a fiancee in Vienna.

Seeks To Improve Education

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I haven't had much education, but am trying very hard to learn. I would like to be able to write interesting letters, and would also like to improve my penmanship. I visited my husband's people in the East, but have not written them yet to say how much I enjoyed visiting them.

I'm also very anxious to be able to further my education, so that my children won't think I'm a

DUMB BELL.

If you will send me a stamped and self-addressed envelope (3-cent stamp) I will be glad to answer your question personally. In the meantime, you can go to your public library and get books on letter-writing, and any stationery store will give you the names of copybooks to improve your penmanship.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm 24 years old and have been married and divorced. I get very lonesome at times and would like to go out, but I seem unable to hold on to a boy friend.

I've been going with a nice young man, but he is a widower with children, and allows them to come first, even when he has a date with me. I have children also.

He tells me that his children do not want a new mother, although they have never met me. I think a great deal of him and would like to have your advice.

DISCOURAGED.

If his children are opposed to a stepmother, it seems to me that a marriage between you two would be very unsatisfactory, and I'd advise against it. Try and make new friends and forget about this widower. Perhaps in time you will meet other men who will prove to be a better match for you.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I PERMITTED Mary and her brothers half an hour for affectionate chatter before sending the two boys down to their room on the next floor. When they had gone, I turned back to Mary who was, I saw, wide awake, excitement having banished her fatigue.

"Look here!" she said. "Where do you want to sleep? Of course, we don't want to disturb Miss Whitlock—"

"Let Miss Whitlock speak for herself," the nurse said, smiling, as she came into the living room from the door of my room which, at my direction, she had occupied during my absence.

"It's my busines to eavesdrop on all visitors to this room, you know," she went on with a manner half jesting, half earnest. "But when I saw who the visitors were, I went back to bed, keeping one ear cocked for the boys' departure. But now I'm on the job. I've made up your bed with fresh linen, Mrs. Graham — from the emergency supply—and I'm now going back to my own room. So don't waste your time making plans about sleeping arrangements."

All-Around Brick.

"Did anybody ever tell you, Miss Whitlock, that you're an all-around brick?" Mary asked extravagantly.

The nurse's eyes showed her appreciation of the tribute.

"Thank you," she said simply. "Is there anything I can do for either of you?"

"Not a thing," Mary said, but I gave Miss Whitlock a significant look.

"I don't want to take anything now," I said, "but I feel a headache coming on. I may have to appeal to you later on."

"Don't hesitate to call on me for anything you wish—anything," she said with emphasis. "I'm a light sleeper, as you know, and I can go back to sleep within a minute a dozen times a night after being roused."

"That's positively maddening," highly-strung Mary said ruefully. "It takes me hours to go back to sleep."

"It won't tonight," Miss Whitlock said with decision. "You've been losing altogether too much sleep lately. I'm going to give you a sedative right now."

"Please, may I make an amendment?" I asked.

"A dozen if you like," the nurse returned. "You're a privileged party around here."

Will Give It to Her.

"Only one," I said. "Let me give her the sedative. I won't keep her up long, but there are a few things I must say to her, and then I promise I'll tuck her into bed, make her swallow the sedative and wait until she goes to sleep before sleeping myself."

Miss Whitlock shot me another signifant glance.

"I am entirely at your service," she said, and forthwith brought me the sedative.

"You have news for me," she said. "Bad or good?"

"Some exceedingly good," I said, "the rest depending upon how you look at it. I'll give you the good news first. I've brought Noel up to the city. He's at the Hotel — 10 blocks from here. You and I are going over there tomorrow to stay for two or three days. You can practice there as well as here."

"You're not fooling me, are you?" she asked, as a child might do.

"No, indeed, Darling," I told her. "You will see Noel tomorrow."

"But—surely—his father—. Has he changed his mind about us?"

There was fantastic hope in her voice, a rapture which I hated to dispel.

"I'm sorry. He hasn't changed at all," I said reluctantly.

"Then how—" she began, and I answered her quickly.

"Noel's father knows nothing of this trip," I said, and watched her from suddenly narrowed eyes as I spoke. What would her reaction be to that last statement?

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Oct. 7.

A rather lively, eventful and probably dramatic day is forecast from a long chain of interesting and intriguing planetary aspects. There are treacherous conditions to maneuver into sound channels and away from very dangerous disturbances. Strategy and shrewdness may be brought to bear on kindred methods of attack, a case of "dog eat dog" as it were. Personally, there are splendid compensations, with much social or sentimental activity.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year of such subtle and perplexing conditions that their own intrigue, connivance and craftiness may be the only solution to menacing situations, plots or schemes. Drastic events are probable, with travel, change and disturbance. Shun recklessness and impetuosity, and seek compensations in social, domestic or romantic affiliations.

A child born on this day may have a rather dramatic way of doing things, being inclined to positive, drastic and audacious methods. It should have much determination, courage and enthusiasm, seeking an adventurous career. Yet, it should be sociable, friendly, gentle and have much personal appeal.

Singer Names Favorite Dishes

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

LOTTE LEHMANN, beloved singer of the Metropolitan Opera company, recently returned to the United States for her seventh consecutive season in America. The famous Wagnerian singer has been decorated and acclaimed by most of the countries of Europe, but it is the Americans she has taken to her heart. Our way of living, and especially of eating, appeals to Madame Lehmann. When exotic and heavy foreign dishes begin to pall, it is with relief that she turns to the common-sense, wholesome, well-balanced meals for which Americans are famous. When Madame Lehmann first tasted tomato juice, she sent cases of it to her family in Austria. She also sent recipes for such typical dishes as a New England boiled dinner and corn beef hash.

Favorite Dishes.

We asked Madame Lehmann for some of her favorite recipes, dishes that she has evolved since she has visited here. She told us that recipes using tomatoes and apples never pall, and she thinks that some of our readers might like to try these Lehmann specials. First is a recipe for tomatoes stuffed with rice. Fry a little chopped onion to a light brown in butter. Add washed rice sufficient for the number of tomatoes to be stuffed. Mix rice thoroughly with onion and butter. Then moisten with stock and cook for 20 minutes until the rice is tender. Add grated Parmesan cheese, a little more butter, season with salt and pepper and chili peppers. Stuff tomatoes with this mixture. Sprinkle each tomato with a little grated cheese, pour melted butter over, and bake in a moderate oven for 20 to 25 minutes.

Dawn soup is a soup with a poetical name which is well deserved. It consists of one and three-quarters pints of good meat stock to which a little over one-half cup of tapioca is added and boiled for 30 minutes until soft, with the addition of three or four tablespoons of tomato puree and thin slices of either cooked chicken or veal.

Every one has a favorite method of preparing apple compote. Madame Lehmann says that her favorite recipe is to peel, core and quarter one pound of apples and cut the quarters in half. Put two tablespoons of butter in a saucepan with three-quarters cup of sugar, a little chopped lemon peel, two or three tablespoons of currants and a little grated cinnamon. Cook slices of apple in this until quite tender, being careful not to cook them too soft or they will break. This is a splendid filling for open apple tart.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

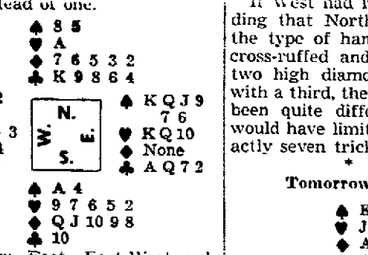
"The Authority on Authorities"

DESTROY RUFFING

WHEN YOU FEEL pretty sure, from the bidding, that the declarer expects to cross-ruff the hand, your best way to cripple him is by leading trumps. In fact, lead them as many times as you can and thus make him use up two on each trick instead of one.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

The bidding on this deal was 1-Spade by East, 2-Diamonds by South, 3-Diamonds by North, 3-Spades by East and 4-Diamonds by North, which East doubled.

West led the spade 10, which South took with the A. A heart was led to the A and a spade trick given up to East. East thought he had nothing better to return than another spade, on which South tossed his club and ruffed in dummy. A club was next led and trumped in the South and followed by the ruff of a heart in the North. South continued cross-ruffing back and forth with the result that he lost only the spade trick and the two high diamonds.

If West had read from the bidding that North and South held the type of hands that would be cross-ruffed and had laid down his two high diamonds and followed with a third, the result would have been quite different. That play would have limited declarer to exactly seven tricks.

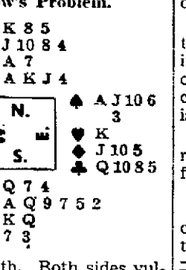
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

How should South play to make 6-hearts after the lead of the spade 9?

Hungry Look Going Out Of Style

By MME. QUI VIVE

Gone is the beautiful wax lady who graced the windows of dress shops.

Scan the drawings in fashion magazines. They are also emaciated creatures. Sometimes the artist puts shadows in the cheeks.

Regard some of our ladies of fashion. With the hosted eyebrow; the skun back coiffure their prizes take on an appearance of leanness. All bones, little flesh. You can thank Garbo for this new girl we have with us. Or her makeup artist. There are stills of her that make you wonder if she's lost her back teeth she is so hollow-cheeked, hollow-eyed, hungry looking.

How long the present style of chic homeliness will stay with us, nobody knows. A little bird tells me that it is already on the way out.

Heavy lip smears have become tiresome, lips are outlined according to natural pattern. Eye shadows aren't doing very well. Calcium faces are old stuff, powder is being used with discretion.

If curves are coming in, why make the face look like that of a famine victim? It's a merry game.

Nothing so enhances the value of a thing as the difficulty of obtaining it.
